GOOD OUTLOOK FOR BUSINESS, REPORT SHOWS

Hoover's Conservative "Very Fair" Indicates Further Prosperity
SEES SOME SLACKENING
Low Money Rates and Good Crops Indicate Stimulation of Business

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1927, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Herbert Hoover every now and then analyzes business conditions. As secretary of commerce he has extraordinary facilities for gathering information, some of which is public and some confidential. He has charts made on nearly every important commodity. He watches the ups and downs of the essential business indicators all the time and gathers impressions from his bureau chiefs who are in constant correspondence with businessmen.

So when Mr. Hoover says the outlook for the remainder of 1927 is "very fair," he can be relied upon to have chosen his words carefully. From a statistical viewpoint it can be argued that the early months of this year in some respects were better than the corresponding period of last year but government officials do not hesitate to admit that the adjustments which have been going on in business have caused a slackening in some lines due to diminished purchasing power.

INDIANA COURTHOUSE BURNS; $750,000 LOSS

Washington, Ind.—(AP)—Two early morning fires here Thursday destroyed the Davison courthouse and burned the contents of several stores and offices, causing a total loss estimated at $750,000.

Nothing but the walls of the courthouse remained but nearly all county records were saved. The loss to the courthouse is estimated at $350,000. Another fire broke out several blocks away at temple court which houses two large stores and a number of offices and smaller establishments. The loss in this fire was estimated at $100,000. First reports that the fire may have been of incendiary origin were later discounted.

Chief Prim Explains How to Safely Speed Up Traffic at Intersections

Left turns by motorists are a big hindrance to safe traveling and are the cause of many minor accidents according to George T. Prim, chief of police. If motorists would follow common rules of safety in executing such a turn, most of the trouble and accidents would be avoided, the chief believes. However, many motorists fail to signal when they are about to turn, or make the turn in the wrong manner after they have signaled.

Rules of safety and courtesy in road ethics demand that a driver about to make a left turn should signal with his arm by pointing in the direction he is about to take. If this is done, the driver behind will at least be on his guard. Aside from failure to signal, one of the great menaces to traffic is a motorist, who, after signalling, swings to the right side of the road in order to make a sweeping turn.

A move of this kind forces all the machines behind the "left turner" to stop until he has crossed the road, and even though the driver makes the turn plans to wait until the machines behind him have passed, those in the rear have no way of knowing he is going to wait and must slow down until he makes his course known.

USE LEFT LANE

Chief Prim advises motorists making a left turn to reach the left side of the center of the road as they approach the corner where the turn is to be made. This move will allow other motorists in the rear to pass him on the right side while he waits for line of traffic, coming from the opposite direction, to pass. This is a very simple formula for the drivers to remember and will greatly aid in simplifying the traffic problem, the chief declared.

The motorist should consider the right side of the road as being divided into three lanes, the chief said. The left lane should be taken by motorists planning to make a left, the center lane should be taken by those planning to go straight ahead and the right lane should be used by those who intend to turn in that direction. When the road is only wide enough for two such lanes, those making a left turn should keep to the left and those intending to go straight or to make a right turn should take the right lane.

FINISH IMPROVEMENT OF TWO COUNTY HIGHWAYS

Graveling of state trunk highway 75 in Outagamie-co from Bear Creek to Leeman was completed this week by the Binghamton Gravel company, according to A. G. Brusewitz, county highway commissioner. The cost of this improvement, which was started last summer but was delayed by incessant rains, is approximately $50,000. The improvement extends over about six miles.

Paving of highway 76, from Greenville to Stephenville, started this summer by the Gravel-Wilson Construction company of Appleton, was completed last week and workmen were improving the shoulders this week. It is expected that the crews will finish their work in a few days and the road can be opened to traffic within the next two weeks.

This improvement, which extends for more than 4 miles, cost approximately $100,000.

BEGIN PREPARATIONS FOR TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

Preparations are being made in the office of A. G. Meating, superintendent of schools, for the annual fall teachers' institute which will be held in circuit court room of the courthouse on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 2 and 3, just a few days before the opening of the rural schools. Rural school teachers are obliged by law to attend the meeting.

The principal speaker probably will be George Dick, Madison, inspector of rural schools. Mr. Dick has spoken at teachers' institutes here for several years. Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, also is scheduled to give an address. Mr. Meating is making arrangements for other speakers on the program.

The purpose of the institute is to acquaint teachers with the newest methods of teaching and to give them their supplies for the opening of the school term. Similar institutes are held later in the school year.

COST OF LAW-MAKING BY LEGISLATURE WAS EXACTLY $328,051.04

Madison—(AP)—The total cost of law-making in Wisconsin during the past session of the legislature, according to figures released today from the secretary of state's office, amounted to $328,051.04.

The salaries and mileage paid to senators and assemblymen are listed among the small items, the state paying its solons only $17,512.

The employees, who receive nothing in honor, publicity, nor adverse criticism, collected more than a third of the total amount expended by the State. Their bill amounted to $100,642.50.

The hiring of chaplains cost $741 and the publishing of the legislation which finally was enacted into state laws netted the printing companies $57,950.

The printing companies also came out ahead in the printing of senate and assembly journals as well as the numerous bills and resolutions introduced. This expense-cost the State $69,945.

APPLETON FIRM IS LOW BIDDER ON SEWER JOB

The Wilson Construction company of Appleton was the low bidder on the proposed sewer to be constructed on Weimar-st from Newberry-st., 2,250 feet south. The local firm's bid was $5,324.50. The Anthony Tomasz Construction company of Fond du Lac was the only other bidder. Its bid was $5,544.50. The bids have been tabulated by the board of public works and are to be acted on at the next meeting of the common council.

AUTOMOBILE ASSESSMENT CARDS BEING RETURNED

Approximately three fourths of the automobile assessment cards sent out by George E. Peotter, assessor, have been returned. Car owners were asked to help the assessor in making the 1929 assessment by supplying information asked for on the cards.

"In many cases," the assessor points out, "the car owners forget about the cards and thus fail to return them. Other people think the assessor can get the information when he makes his assessment tour. The cards should be returned regardless of whether or not the assessor is to visit the home."

There were about 3,500 machines assessed in Appleton last year. Mr. Peotter said, and the number will be about the same this year. About five per cent of all the automobiles are missed in the annual assessment.

WHITE GRANITE TO BE PLACED ON SALE

State's "White Elephant" No Longer Will Litter Floor of Capitol

Madison—(AP)—Wisconsin's "white elephant" in the opinion of C. E. Ballard, superintendent of public property, consists of a few tons of white granite which "has held down the basement of the state capitol" for more than 12 years.

The granite was shipped to Madison by a Minneapolis concern during the construction period of the state house and, according to Mr. Ballard, was rejected by the state architect as defective. It was placed on a vacant lot where it stood for years, and later stored in the basement of the capitol.

For years state employees have moved the granite from one corner of the basement to another, wondering what could be done with it. Letters were dispatched asking that the granite be removed. During this time two bills were introduced into the legislature calling for sums, ranging as high as $4,000, to be paid by the state to the granite company. All of these bills were killed.

Mr. Ballard recently sent a letter to the Minneapolis firm enclosing a charge of $1,000. A reply brought forth the information that "the state might as well charge for granite which is now a part of the ground floor piers of the capitol" that these piers were not "rightfully the property of the state of Wisconsin" and that Mr. Ballard "might charge storage for the piers."

The superintendent of public property, however, felt the granite com-

BUSINESS FAILURES LAID ON BIG STOCKS

Simplification Called Remedy for Prevalent Commercial Breakdowns

Methods of preventing commercial failures by simplification of stock, territory and customers, are explained in a bulletin received at the chamber of commerce from the department of commerce at Washington, D. C. Collective efforts to stimulate simplification among retailers in general will reduce the failure record considerably, according to the bulletin.

From 1920 to 1927 inclusive, 125,000 commercial failures with total liabilities of $2,500,000,000, were recorded. In 1924-25-26 70 per cent of all failures occurred in the trading group and this group's share of the total liabilities increased from 37 1/2 per cent in 1924 to 49 per cent in 1926. The liabilities per individual failure averaged close to $4,000 for the three years. Of the failures 92 per cent had a capital of only $5,000 or under.

Bradstreet's analysis of causes of failures during the years 1922 to 1926 inclusive, gives "incompetence" as the cause of 35 per cent of the cases, and "lack of capital" for 33 per cent more, the bulletin says. Causes for failure of the other 27 per cent are scattered among inexperience, extravagance, speculation and fraud.

CAN BE OVERCOME

In so far as incompetence expresses a deficiency in managerial ability, it can be overcome by intensive study and application of methods that have helped others to success, but oftentimes lack of capital means "too much money tied up in slow-moving or dead stocks." The effort to carry a wide variety, a large assortment or a full line, has handicapped many an otherwise capable merchant. Fear that he would lose his trade if he couldn't fill every order that came his way has tempted more than one merchant to "overstock." Simplified practices help the merchant to cut down his inventory, get quicker turnover and better profit, according to the bulletin.

One merchant carried in his women's and children's hosiery department an average monthly investment of $55,850 divided among 26 manufacturers. His annual sales were $87,633 and his stock turn 1.57 times a year.

STUDENT SOLDIERS TO RETURN HOME THIS WEEK

Appleton and Outagamie co. student soldiers at the Citizens' Military Training camp at Fort Sheridan, Ill., will don civilian clothes this week when the most successful camp in the history of the C. M. T. C. closes at the Illinois training center Friday. Reports from boys at the camp this year state that the food has been exceptionally good. Twenty-eight Outagamie co. boys, mostly from Appleton and Kaukauna, attended the camp and many won prizes for proficiency in athletics, drill and marksmanship.

There will be no stirring martial music or tramp of feet when the students return, for they will come in groups or singly from the camps in their "civies" which have been held by the quartermaster at the fort. Those who have had an opportunity of seeing the boys in training at the camp say that within a month the students have been so adapted to army rules and regulations that they march like veterans and are skilled in sports and drill tactics.

DR. DELBRIDGE MOVES OFFICES TO CHICAGO

Dr. H. N. Delbridge, who has a dental office over the Irving Zuehlke music store has moved his office to Chicago. The rooms formerly occupied by Dr. Delbridge may be used by Dr. A. L. Koch, eye specialist.

Eighty per cent of his business was done on five brands and 20 per cent on the other twenty-one. At that he lost 54 per cent of the people who came to his store because four times out of five he didn't have the size they wanted. He simplified his stocks to five brands, cut his investment to $25,000 and increased his sales to $187,755 a year. He cut his lost sales from 54 to 23 per cent and cut down the number of clearance or markdown sales, necessary under former conditions, by 17 per cent.

A well-known eastern hardware merchant cut out 31 per cent of his stock items, 28 per cent of his territory and 56 per cent of his customers. These changes caused some increase in his gross sales but the volume of net profits increased 35 per cent in three years, and the percentage of "net" to "sales" increased 58 per cent.

EXTENSION DIVISION FURNISHES NEW IDEA

Report Shows People of Wisconsin Are Interested in Problems of State

Madison—(AP)—Politicians and newspaper men, whose main business is to find out "what the public is thinking about" have been offered a few suggestions by the University of Wisconsin extension division.

The extension division, in its report of the use of package libraries in Wisconsin, have offered a report which throws some light upon what the public is interested in.

The issues in public affairs which engaged the attention of citizens using the 6,515 package libraries sent out during the year may be judged from the following tabulation of uses of packets:

Initiative and referendum, 140; conservation, 134; immigration, 87; labor problems, 84; world peace, 68; education in Wisconsin, 64; liquor problem, 63; highways, 37; Philippine independence, 25; Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 30.

The packets went into 695 different Wisconsin communities and to 1,291 individuals. Exactly 63-74 per cent of the communities into which the packets went were without public libraries. In each town with a public library where applications were made for university package libraries, duplication of any material in the local library was avoided.

NO ADEQUATE AIRPORT HERE FOR SEAPLANES

City officials of Appleton will have to drop some of the proposed sites for a local airport, entirely from their plans if they follow the plan of a municipal airport advocated by American City, System and other leading civic magazines, which have published several lengthy articles on the subject recently. The plans in the magazines call for the port on a lake or body of water so that seaplanes as well as the regular aircraft can be cared for. A canal from the lake to the airport and special seaplane hangars are included in the plans.

ARITHMETIC CONTEST AT MILWAUKEE FAIR

Milwaukee—(AP)—Spelling and arithmetic contests in which boy and girl champions from each of the 71 counties of the state will participate will be one of the features of the educational department of the state fair at Milwaukee, Aug. 29 to Sept. 3.

The winners of the spelling and arithmetic contests will receive gold medals and the runners-up silver medals. The American Legion will award a silver cup to the boy and girl making the best marks.

The educational department, directed by John Callahan, state superintendent of public instruction, will be represented by from 65 to 70 schools and other educational agencies occupying booths in the Educational building.

Fourteen counties, four county normal schools, 21 model schools and nine associated colleges will have exhibit booths. The University of Wisconsin and Marquette University will each have several booths while the St. John's military academy will also be represented.

RIB LAKE LUMBER CO. EXPANDS LOCAL OFFICE

The Rib Lake Lumber Co. which recently moved its offices to the Insurance-bldg. in this city has expanded to larger quarters in the building. Part of the force of the company, formerly located at Rib Lake, has been moved here, necessitating the larger space. Office space in the building is now all taken according to William H. Zuehlke, treasurer of the Aid Association for Lutherans.

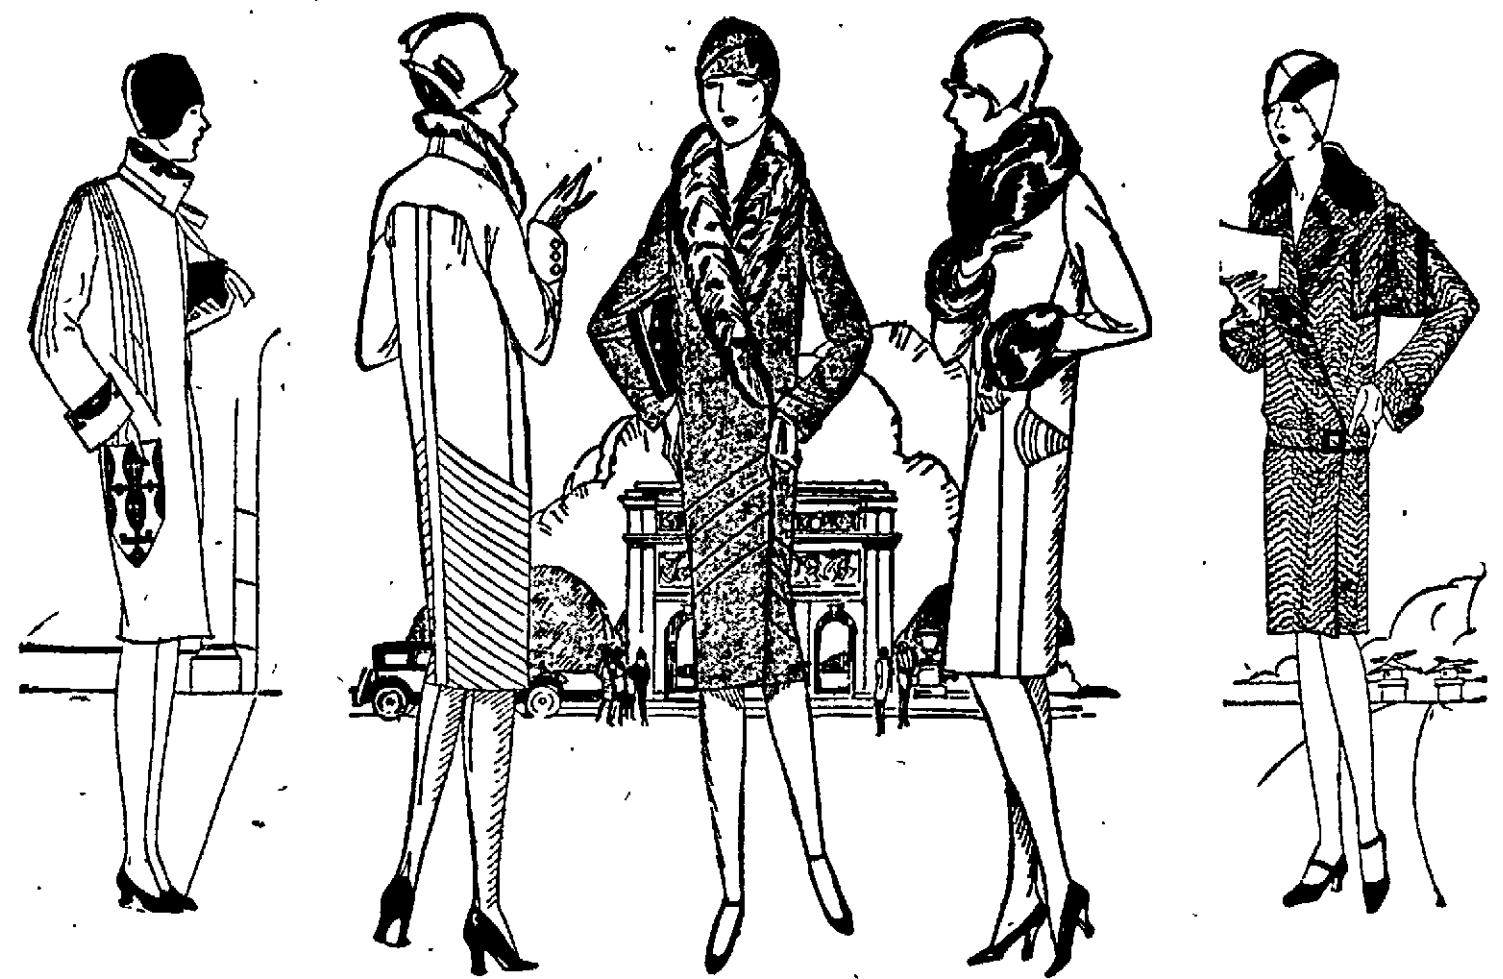

46 PUPILS ENROLL FOR CONSERVATORY COURSES

Forty-six enrollment for the full conservatory course in the freshman year have been received at Lawrence conservatory of music, Dean Carl J. Waterman has announced. By the time school opens in September, it is expected that 60 freshmen will be enrolled in the course, he said. The registration is slightly higher than last year.

Others will enroll for special courses at the school who do not take the full time course.

CONTRACT IS LET FOR IMPROVEMENT OF NEENAH STREET

Criticism of Alderman Schmidt Results in Offer to Quit Position

Neenah—Final arrangements for the improvement of Walnut-st were completed Wednesday night at the special meeting of the common council. The contract for paving and widening of Walnut-st between E. Wisconsin-ave and J. Doty-st was let to the Schneider Construction company and all recommendations from the board of public works regarding assessment of benefits and damages, were accepted and resolutions were passed providing for starting of the work.

Reports from the board of public works on sewer work to be constructed this year were accepted and the work ordered started with the board of public works in charge. The board reported that five bids for the proposed sewer program had been received and had been rejected as they were excessive of the estimated cost of the work. All sewer work with exception of Church-st, High-st and the alley in the rear of the Anspach store was abandoned for the present as the funds set aside for the sewer districts were low and would not meet the contract prices as submitted by the contractor.

Edward Braemer, a resident on Lake drive which was one of the temporarily abandoned sewer streets, appeared before the council asking that his sewer be constructed this season as he had been a resident on that street for the last 14 years and during that time the city had placed many sewers in new plats about the city and had neglected placing one in his vicinity. He said that other property owners had sewers emptying into the lake, which is unlawful, but he would be driven to do the same if a sewer was not built for him soon. He claimed that he had lost a daughter through unsanitary conditions existing in his neighborhood for lack of a sewer system.

THREATENS TO QUIT

Alderman William Schmidt, president of the board of public works, assured Mr. Braemer that sooner or later he would have a sewer there as the cancelling of the bids did not mean that the sewer program had been abandoned entirely. Alderman Schmidt reported that the board had been unjustly criticised not only by outsiders but by citizens and that he was ready to resign as president and a member as he had tried at all times to satisfy the people of the city and that he did not care to be further criticised. He invited the people of Neenah to attend the board meetings which were always open, as that was the time to make complaints and to get acquainted with the work which the board has charge of.

Action on the lighting project was deferred until the return of the city attorney, who is away on a vacation. His opinion as to assessing costs to property owners and the tax payers at large is needed.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE STARTS ON SEPT. 12

Neenah—Football practice will be started at the high school immediately following the opening of school for the fall term as the first game is scheduled with two Rivers here on Oct. 1. There is plenty of material for a good team this year, according to Coach Ole Jorgenson, as there are still some of last year's "big" men left.

Neenah's schedule has Oconto Falls, Oct. 8; Sturgeon Bay here, Oct. 15; Shawano in Shawano, Oct. 22; an open date for Nov. 5 and Menasha on Nov. 12. The game with the Alumni team will have to be postponed as school does not open until Sept. 12 and the game is scheduled for Sept. 4. The St. Peter team of Oshkosh, is a likely choice to take either the place of the Alumni or the open date in the schedule.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to sincerely thank our many friends, neighbors and relatives for their kindness and sympathy shown during our late bereavement in the death of our beloved mother, Mrs. Wilhelmina Prytz. We most heartily thank you all for the kindness shown during her last sickness, for your attendance at the funeral and for the sympathy extended and beautiful floral offerings. We want to thank Rev. and Mrs. Kollath and Mrs. Emil Schwartz for their services, and Charles Schonen for his kind ministrations.

NEWSPAPER DISPATCH REKINDLES HOPE THAT MISSING SOLDIER LIVES

Neenah—Reference to a James Bach in a Paris dispatch to the larger papers Wednesday, as a member of a committee of American soldiers still in Paris will have charge of the annual "torch lighting" ceremony during the American Legion convention there next month, has led relatives here to investigate whether or not the James Bach mentioned might possibly be a Neenah boy.

The James Bach of Neenah left with Co. I when that company of infantry organized in Neenah, left for the war. He never came back and was never heard from since the war. He disappeared from his company while the company was in action. No record of his being killed or dying has ever been received by the parents who, at the time of the war were Neenah residents but are now residing in Oshkosh. Neils Bach, the father, is endeavoring to get in communication with Paris officials in an effort to ascertain whether or not his son is still alive. It is possible Mr. Bach will go to Paris during the Legion convention to secure first hand information.

NEENAH SOCIETY

Neenah—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weed, 31 W. Irving-st, Oshkosh, announce the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy Weed, to Clifford Paulson of Neenah, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gundar W. Paulson of Oshkosh. The marriage took place at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Aug. 21, at the home of Wilfred Hall in Waubesa, Ill.

Miss Clara Jap, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jap, and Herbert Blohm, son of August Blohm, were married at 7 o'clock Thursday afternoon by the Rev. L. C. Piles Go Quick No Cutting or Salves Needed External treatments seldom banish Piles. The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby. The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leander, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID and he tried it in hundreds of cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Schlitz Bros., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

Dance Volume!

POWERFUL reproduction that can be heard above shutting feet and gay chatter. The music of every instrument as distinct as though the orchestra were right in your living room. Realism! That's what Kellogg has done for radio with its 29 years of telephone and engineering experience.

Kellogg puts behind its radio receivers the stability and permanence of the largest independent telephone manufacturer. This six-million dollar institution will be here in 1927, 1928—always—to guarantee the performance of Kellogg sets. Consider the maker of the set before you buy.

KELLOGG Radio

That booming dance volume—which can, incidentally, be cut to a whisper if desired—is made possible largely by the exclusive Kellogg development Inductive Tuning. Models 507 and 508 are tuned to different stations by variable coils—a feature which gives them qualities a full year ahead of other sets.

For instance, you get the same remarkable range and volume on all wave lengths—short, medium and long. Find another set for which this can be claimed—and proven! Then, too, you get easier tuning—stations spread out equally by frequency at the short wave end of the range and equally by wave length where longer waves come in.

These superior receivers are completed by large rich looking walnut cabinets and panels, given a full piano finish. The console with built-in speaker, $145.00—the cable model $215.00. Come in and hear these sets for yourself—we'll be glad to demonstrate them at any time.

UNIFORM LAWS

Our marriage and divorce laws, with their forty-eight varieties, one for every state, have long been looked upon as a public disgrace. There has been much discussion and some effort to improve both, with little or no success. The thought seems to be gaining ground that it is a matter that cannot be reached by civil legislation, that education in the home, the school, the church, is the only remedy. While all of these are good and should be exercised to the fullest extent of their usefulness, it must not be overlooked that civil legislation is also a great educator for good if the laws are good, but infinitely more for bad if the laws are bad. This being the fact, the failure of such laws as have been mainly urged should not be regretted, for they were not especially good laws, in fact, they were all more or less bad.

The most notable recent attempt was the resolution of Senator Capper, prepared at the request of well meaning but misguided women's clubs, through which it was sought to secure an amendment to the constitution granting to congress unlimited power to enact laws on marriage and divorce. While no doubt this would have corrected some evils, it would with equal certainty have effectually wiped out much good, as all just states' rights would have been wiped out by it. A conservative estimate of the causes for divorce in any such national law is four or five, in which case a lower standard would be forced upon New York, New Jersey, the Carolinas and others.

What is needed is a national standard of marriage and divorce which no state may lower but which any state may raise if it so wishes. Such a resolution might get a hearing and if successful might be expected to accomplish a great deal of good.

AUTO ACCIDENT RULING

Future suits in automobile accidents involving children will be affected directly or indirectly by the ruling of the supreme court of Washington in the case of Pritchard against Hockett. The automobile was being driven about six feet from the curb at about ten miles an hour. An eight year old boy approached on the opposite side of the street from the opposite direction propelling a coaster wagon. Suddenly he veered diagonally across the street in front of the automobile, the fender of which caught him. The parents of the child sued for the hospital bills; the lower court dismissed the action, but the supreme court reversed the case. The opinion of the justice states: (Speaking of the driver)

"A glance by him up the street must have shown him the presence of the child, and, having seen him, he was bound to know that a child of the age of this one might undertake to cross the streets in front of him, and it was of course his duty to appreciate the danger and to have stopped his auto, or at least turned it so as to avoid collision."

Discussing the question of contributory negligence on the part of the boy, he said: "It is well known by every person who drives an auto that a child of that age is more or less reckless and unappreciative of the dangers about him. It is not at all improbable that he thought he had ample time to cross the street without colliding with the auto. On matters of this kind it would not do to place upon a child of eight or nine years the burden of having such an accurate judgment in such matters as the law would impose on one older and more experienced. Under the fact of this case we cannot say that the boy was guilty of contributory negligence."

In this day and age the child would be dull, indeed, who at eight years did not know the danger of playing in the street. And while recognizing that children in the street should always be the subject of special vigilance and precaution, the fairness of placing all the blame on the driver is open to question.

FEAR AND PRESIDENTS

President Coolidge's announcement of withdrawal from the presidential race was a severe blow to New York stock market prices. One market leader has been quoted as expressing a fervent hope that the president would get back into the race, evidently to help things along again in a market way. Seriously, the stock market might do well to broaden its concepts of the presidency.

From a business standpoint Mr. Coolidge seems admittedly to have been just about an ideal chief executive. He has "sat tight." Business has known he was a shrewd politician who could hang on to his job. Business men have been sure of his conservatism in the matter of trust-busting, of his pronounced economical tendencies in taxation. In the strict sense we had no postwar "reconstruction period," but merely a term of retrenchment from wartime excessive staffs and expenditures. Mr. Coolidge has served well the function of careful leadership in this necessary job. He will deserve a notable place among the presidents for a tidying-over service, during which American industry has made remarkable strides.

But the idea that Mr. Coolidge has set the presidential type and should be kept until some one else of exactly the same mould can win public confidence is a small, timid, uninspired and parochial notion. There is still room for variety in presidents. With all due respect to the stock market, nothing more tragic could occur nationally than establishment of a habit of president-picking with a sole eye to preventing disturbances on Wall street. We have had entirely too much of that notion.

It would doom the country to chief executives of a single standard, excellent in certain kinds of crises but in the long run hopeless for national progress in a social and spiritual sense. We must not fear to elect men who are positive, constructive, evolutionary, full of ideas and ideals, determined to make changes and leave new landmarks instead of upholding things as they are. We must have an eye open to the virtues of potential Woodrow Wilsons, Theodore Roosevelts, Lincolns and Washingtons as well as Calvin Coolidges.

HOME OWNERSHIP

The United States is behind most European countries in the number of owned homes, and a recent bulletin of the department of labor showed that ownership of individual homes in the United States is on the decline. This report falling into the hands of a large building material manufacturer, inspired him with the idea of establishing a fund to promote the idea of home ownership and he began to interest other manufacturers and dealers, with the result that a million dollars is to be spent to tell the people of the United States how easy it is today for a man to own his own home.

It may be argued that this campaign is entirely mercenary because it is being waged by men who are in the business of manufacturing and selling building material. And it indeed may be, but even so, home ownership is vital to the well being of any country, and the educational campaign to teach people why they should own their own home and how to own their own home is a constructive course in good citizenship. As such it is nationally beneficial. The benefit to the family that has long desired to own its own home but thought it impossible is beyond estimate.

That these few building material manufacturers and dealers will also benefit is true, but all other building material manufacturers and dealers will equally benefit, and that benefit will reach from them down to the architect, the contractor, the carpenter, the mason, the plumber, the painter and the day laborer, to say nothing of the interior decorator, the furniture manufacturer and dealer and others too numerous to mention.

Any group of people willing to spend a million dollars that so many beside themselves may benefit should be looked upon in the light of philanthropists.

OLD MASTERS

I know a thing that's most uncommon:
(Envy be silent and attend!)
I know a reasonable woman,
Handsome and witty, yet a friend.

Not warped by passion, swayed by rumor;
Not grave through pride, nor gay through folly;
An equal mixture of good humor
And sensible soft melancholy.

"Has she no faults then? (Envy says), Sir?
Yes, she has one, I must care to raise her.
When all the world conspires to raise her,
The woman's deaf, and does not hear."
—Alexander Pope: On a Certain Lady at Court.

Almost every day the cables bring word that Charles A. Lynde has started another fight across the Atlantic.

A woman refuse in California to let her mail on a corset and it was found to be binding. The garment still stands off obscures.

CHILDREN, BEWARE OF LABORATORIES

A little while ago I endeavored to bring to your attention the sad status of the title "Professor." This title, originally respectful, has been so much abused or misused, at least in this free (and easy) country, that most of us smile now at the fellow who has the temerity to pose as a "professor." In like manner the title of "Doctor" threatens to become a byword, a humorous nickname, because in recent years so many merchants, mendicants and mountebanks have appropriated the title that no one knows what it stands for and its original significance is now lost. No longer can a stranger safely assume that a person with the title "Doctor" is a member of the learned profession. The horde of twentieth century pirates on the healing art have made the title meaningless so far as this art may be concerned, and as for doctors of divinity, law or philosophy, why, nowadays they seem reluctant to use the title, and even in the medical profession there is a growing sentiment in favor of discarding the title to the exclusive use of the quacks who so highly prize it.

It is a curious thing, or so it seems to me, that the very charlatans who so loudly insist, when threatened with legal punishment, that they are not practicing medicine, are the most eager to appropriate the title "Doctor." One such pirate who undertook to instruct me about pathology insisted that I call him "Doctor" and when I declined to do so pointed out statute or something recently enacted by his state legislature granting merchants in his line of business the privilege of calling themselves "Doctors" provided they invariably append a line explaining that the title didn't mean what the simple layman would naturally suppose. Our legislatures spring a good many such jokes in the course of a long winter's session.

In the numerous inquiries readers submit about the claims or promises or "guarantees" of all kinds of mail order nostrums and quackery, it is notable that a large share of the firms in this lucrative line of business pose as "laboratories." It must be that the name "laboratory" impresses the prospect. I find the same roll assigned to the "laboratory" in the general run of murder mystery yarns. The authors, like the mail order sharps, evidently assuming that if they can get the gaping sucker, the reader, into a laboratory, the rest of the trick will be easy enough.

Well, I have nothing against laboratories or the legitimate work done therein. A laboratory is an indispensable adjunct of any health department, and quite as essential for the use of any physician. If not for every "doctor." But I advise all unsophisticated customers to keep away from laboratories. Especially do I urge upon readers of this column the wisdom of dealing with any "laboratory" that purports to give treatment for any disease condition or furnish wonderful remedies for any disease condition, real or imaginary.

Medical skill—such as, that isn't the right term for it, any more—healing skill is something like character, personality; a healer possessed of skill can't incorporate and endow his partners, helpers or associates with his skill. The practice of medicine, I mean the healing art is a personal service. No laboratory, institute, company or society can supplant the physician in honest practice.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Well Is Sick

Our wells are being tested and so far two have been found to have typhoid germs. Will iodine make the water safe for drinking and if so how much should we use. We have a 3 year old son and we are very anxious to have the water safe for him. (Mrs. S. M. F.)

Answer—No, iodine would not be suitable for the constant use such circumstances demand. A single drop of common tincture of iodine (the brown "iodine" universally used to paint on bruises and fresh wounds) placed in a quart of water, shaken up and allowed to stand 20 minutes, will kill any typhoid germs. But this is suitable only for emergency use, or where less than a quart of water is consumed in a day. If the well is polluted it should be abandoned. If this is impossible, then all water from the well must be boiled five minutes before it will be safe to use.

Jimmy, It Still Makes a Fellow's Mouth Water
Once long ago, you wrote about old fashioned brown sugar. That awakened memories of 60 years ago when I was a small boy, after a dinner of oatmeal, I was allowed for dessert to have a slice of buttered bread sprinkled with brown sugar. How good that was! (J. E. N.)

Answer—Yes, and even 40 years ago it was still just as good, but alas, the awful stuff they hand out today when a fellow yearns for brown sugar or molasses!

PONIES IN POLITICS

Washington, D. C. — Dark horses have figured in American politics almost from the time that the first election was held in the country. The event dates, in fact, from the time when a man who was not a candidate, or was not looked upon as a formidable candidate, romped out and garnered the prize. Historians and lesser authorities have been reluctant about setting the date, because in a country of so many elections and such wide geography it is extremely difficult to keep or to gather records that are wholly authentic.

Worthy and tried public servants have been defeated by such dark horses. Dishonest cabals and intrigues have been broken up because of the winning race of the dark horse. Other times, the entry of the race that was least suspected of the speed that would put him in front as a winner for more than a post or two has flashed under the wire as the real winner at the end of the race.

The list of successful dark horses is too long to be enumerated, when state and local elections or nominations are taken in consideration, but within the recollection of people now living, and referring only to national elections, there are Hayes, and Garfield, and Cleveland (in his first campaign) John W. Davis may be included, for assuredly no one expected him to win the Democratic presidential nomination in 1924 after the deadlock and bitter fight in Madison Square Garden, even though he was an avowed candidate. However, Davis was not successful when it came to the big race—was almost left at the post, in fact—so he is not to be numbered among the dark horses whose glory is imperishable.

Coolidge, in a sense, was a dark horse when he was named for Vice President in 1920. He had been a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, but there had been little or no talk of him in connection with second place on the ticket and the powers that be in his party had decided that a gentleman from Wisconsin, Senator Lenroot by name, should win that race. But a lucky delegate from the far West started an unexpected demonstration and before any one fully realized what was happening, Calvin Coolidge was on his way to the White House. He won the race for second place and was scarcely a race and succeeded to the Presidency upon Harding's death.

In 1924 he was added as a favorite, winner of the presidential handout, NOW FOR THE BAXY-TAILS OR GEGEES

But now the ponies—the bang-tails or geges—sometimes even denominated dogs or skates—the thoroughbreds that race madly around the ellipse tracks in one place or another almost every day in the year for the edification of man and his profit or loss—have entered politics. Indeed, they have become a political issue, upon which the election in a great State may turn. And upon the result of that election, affairs of grave importance to the whole American people may depend, for the control of a State by one party or another has been known to determine, virtually, a national election or the control of Congress.

The State in question is Kentucky long famous for colts, mint juleps, "hosses," and beautiful women. The issue is whether or not legalized betting on horse races is to be continued. Horse racing, known as the sport of kings because it has been the favorite amusement of monarchs since the earliest dawn of civilization, is as old as any records of human activity colored over the centuries. It has been able to unearth and authenticate. Probably it dates back to the time when a prehistoric man found himself accidentally bested by an eelworm. discovered that for running purposes four legs were better than two, and conceived the idea of a speed contest with his buddy, similarly mounted.

Betting on horse races, presumptively as old as the racing itself. The earlier wagering, however, was between the owners of the contesting steeds and betting by the general public is comparatively a modern innovation or development. It was known first in England. It is said where it is most widespread at the present time. Horse racing was one of the great sports in colonial days in this country, with betting as a concomitant feature, and in the early years of the Republic horse racing came to be regarded by a considerable element of the people as an evil that should be suppressed. On March 19, 1802, the New York legislature passed a law to prohibit horse racing, and in 1820 Pennsylvania not only forbade racing but also provided in its law that no person should "print or cause to be printed, set up or cause to be set up, any advertisement mentioning the time and place for the running, trotting, or pacing of any horses, mares, or geldings," etc. Connecticut had a similar law until within recent years.

THE SPORT COULD NOT BE DOWNED

But all such attempts to put an end to horse racing proved ineffectual. The sport could not be downed. It spread throughout the country. There were big races in almost every section and not a county fair was held without its races. And there was betting wherever there was a horse race. Betting in those days not specifically legalized, but it was permitted.

DAILY HINTS FOR HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and Hygiene, The Health Magazine

There are all sorts of business men like to say that they suffer with a "nervous stomach."

Physicians who specialize in diseases of the stomach and intestines are constantly the recipients of the sad stories of patients who claim that they are unable to retain any food, that they have lost their appetites, that the whole idea of eating makes them tired, and that the world is no good anyway.

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez says that these patients have usually been overworking and losing a great deal of sleep, that they have been eating indigestible foods and mistreating their entire bodies generally.

The first important step in such cases is to find out the details of the patient's life—his possible worries, domestic conflicts or other troubles that are disturbing his mind.

It does not do to tell such a person he should stop worrying. Until the cause of his worry is removed, he is likely to keep right at it. As Dr. Alvarez says, "Particularly difficult to deal with are the women who cannot make up their mind about getting a divorce, and those who lead a cat-and-dog existence with their husbands, but who are chained to them by love for their children."

Wrangling at meal times is especially detrimental to the digestion, and Alvarez cites the biblical text, "Better is a dry morsel and quietness therewith than a house full of feasting with strife." Frequently the patient is relieved merely by telling his troubles to another person.

If the patient will take his gastrointestinal trouble for what it is and decide to get all the happiness he can out of life, regardless of his digestion, he will make a remarkable improvement.

Of greatest importance also is the establishment of a routine of life that will save energy and use up a minimum amount of nervous strength.

As Dr. Alvarez says, "Women in particular must be exhorted to break themselves of the habit of setting all stirred up over little things and of reviewing at great length painful or annoying experiences which a more sensible person would promptly forget."

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—Young New York takes its love where it finds it. Having no country lanes to depend upon, finding travel to a mark a far oftentimes and the Hudson River walkway being somewhat congested it invents strange lover's lanes. The tops of Fifth Avenue buses after nightfall provide an exceptional popular, if precarious, trysting place. Oblivious to bumpings and lurching young love carries on blatantly, freely and, to some, vulgarly. Sometimes it is the bench of the subway station; sometimes one of the old-fashioned horse-driven cabs of the avenue; sometimes one of the most crowded corners. Visitors invariably comment on the open and brazen nature of Manhattan necking parties.

But the poor children have no choice. It's either a dark corner of a movie theater, the top of a bus or curbstone.

Of all the incongruous places for courtship, the American Museum leads the list.

Here, beneath the shadow of a brooding dinosaur, just beyond the cotton of a dinosaur you may come upon a score of incipient romances. The ghosts of a terrifying past have no deterring influence, apparently. They read no sermon on timelessness and change; they have come to hold hands and exchange call-eyes—and that's that!

They tell me that "Jim" Manhattan's oldest caddy, has retired at the ripe age of 82. For many years he was stationed just outside of Central Park, refusing to drive in the hurry and scurry of busy traffic. I a fare insisted on going some place other than the park, Jim would refuse to drive. He would not submit his horse to the competition of taxi and the dangers of accidents. A caddy held for him a dignity that reflected a dead generation.

In his time Jim had driven the Astors, the Goulds and the Belmonts among the backers of the horses that run first, second, and third. Following the War, Jim took on a new lease of life and has been somewhat widely extended, with the pari-mutuel system of betting prevailing at practically all the tracks.

But now Kentucky, the home of the thoroughbred, where there has been horse racing always, and where on a horse race has seemed to be a native instinct, is almost retreating over the question as to whether legalized betting shall be continued. In the recent primaries to name candidates for Governor that was the principal issue. Former Governor and United States Senator J. C. W. Beckham, Democrat, and Robert H. Luham, Republican, announced that they were opposed to legalized betting of horse races. Beckham was nominated by his party, but the first return showed that Lucas had been defeated by Judge Flem D. Sampson for the Republican nomination. The latter if not avowedly in favor of legalized betting, is not of record as opposing it.

Accordingly, the issue at the polls will be, it appears, the same as that in the primaries.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
VERA CAMERON, efficient private secretary for the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Co., expects a promotion to position of secretary to the president, Mr. Canfield, and is disappointed to learn another girl is given the place. When she inquires why she is ignored, he tells her frankly she is too much of a slave driver for a man as old as he is; that he wants someone with brains but who is also human. However, he tells her she is to be made assistant manager to the new advertising manager, JERRY MACKLYN.

When Vera reports to Jerry for work the same morning, her morale as a perfect private secretary receives a severe jolt. Macklyn asks Vera to write him a confidential report on the use of Peach Bloom cosmetics, based on her experience. When she has to admit she has chaste refrained from everything but cleansing cream and powder he is amazed. He has a sudden inspiration. He proposes to transform her into a beauty with the company cosmetics, photograph her in every stage of the transformation and use her photograph in the advertisements. Vera leaves him, her cheeks burning with anger.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III
 When Vera Cameron fled from the presence of Jerry Macklyn, new advertising manager of the Peach Bloom Cosmetics company, and her "boss" since 10 o'clock that morning, she did not know, for the first time in her extremely well-regulated young life, where she was going. Her one thought was to hide. She ran zigzagged down the long corridor of department heads' of the president's office without knowing offices. She had reached the outer door when she collided with Rosemary Fitch, coming out, a sheaf of papers in her tiny white hand.

"Pardon!" Rosemary gasped, recovering her balance with a little shrill soprano shriek. "Oh, it's you, Miss Cameron! Aren't you the lucky thing though? Isn't he adorable? So big and tall!"

"Excuse me. I'm in a hurry," Vera told her in a harsh, choked voice. "I've got to see Mr. Canfield right away."

"Mr. Canfield? Oh, I'm so sorry," Rosemary fluttered. "But you can't possibly see him now. He's in conference. Could I take the message?"

"No, thank you," Vera retorted furiously, swinging on her heel. Then she turned her head to call back sharply, "Yes, you may tell him that I'm through! I resign—this minute!"

"Oh, Vera!" Rosemary gasped, while her eyes grew round and wide with delighted astonishment. "Tell me about it—did he get fresh with you? Honest? Oh, I wish Mr. Canfield had let me have that job!"

"Oh," Vera moaned, striking the palms of her hands together sharply. Then she began to run again, toward the haven of the girl's rest room. Rosemary Fitch called after her:

"You can see him yourself after lunch, Vera. I wouldn't dare tell Mr. Canfield you're going to quit. And—maybe you'll change your mind!"

"She never called me Vera before," The thought flashed unbidden into the distracted girl's mind as she ran, panting into the rest room. "But just as soon as she thinks a man has got fresh with me she makes an intimate friend out of me. That's all an empty-headed little flapper like Rosemary Fitch can think about—oh, oh."

She flung herself down upon a couch in the girls' rest room. Fortunately she was alone until the worst of the storm had subsided. She was furtively wiping her eyes and planning dimly mind and miserable heart for a new sensation—how she had happened even to notice him. But she did notice him, and magically, her distracted mind and her miserable heart were swept clean of all emotions except one—an over powering gladness. So keen was the shock of the discovery that the one man in the world for her stood before her, so close that she could reach out and touch him. That she began to tremble, blood pounded in her ears, and she could not take her eyes off him.

In the half minute that succeeded, while the car plunged downward, then stopped at the sixth floor, her brain had registered, with the accuracy of a photographic plate, every detail of his appearance.

Breathtakingly tall and dark and distinguished-looking, as he leaned with unstudied ease upon the slim black cane which he gripped in a gloved hand. Hair as black and smooth and gleaming as a wet seal's. Dark brown eyes, narrowed a bit with boredom or tolerant amusement, as he talked in a low voice with the man who had entered the car with him. A long, narrow, olive-skinned face, with silky, narrow black brows and a silky, close-clipped little black mustache. A full-lipped mouth, darkly red, its corners playing at odds with each other, one down-dropped, the other turning upward, as if he were amused against his will. She told herself later, rather scornfully, that of course it was not the fact that he was the handsomest man she had ever seen in her life that had made her fall instantly in love with him, but an emanation of personality, a thrilling, nerve-tingling quality about him that she had never found in a man before.

"Spring makes one eager to get away," he was saying to his companion, an entirely negligible male of forty or so. Vera caught her breath sharply as she heard his voice. It was deep-toned, velvet, enriched with a subtle accent which she could not identify.

"Where you going this summer?" the negligible male inquired.

"Oh, the usual thing. I've made reservations for the last half of June at the Minnetonka. A decent layout —big lake, magnificent golf course, a fair stable, excellent jazz orchestra. I'll run up to my camp in Maine a little later, when New York becomes unbearable, if my business permits."

"Hmm! The Minnetonka!" the negligible one commented admiringly.

COOLIDGE WIGWAM READY

President Coolidge and his war bonnet will find a greatly changed wigwam waiting for him upon his return to Washington from the west. Repairs to the White House which forced him to seek temporary quarters elsewhere have been completed, including the brand new roof shown here.

der at her—annoyed, too—"Ah out, mks. Makh floor." I—I forgot something," Vera was startled to hear her voice say almost calmly.

at as the elevator shot her upward again she was praying, over and over, incoherently, "Please God, make Jerry Macklyn be there! Please, God—make him take me back! The Minnetonka—the last week in June—please, God—"

 Vera decides to play Macklyn's

"There ain't no flies on you, Schuyler, my boy—"

Schuyler! He looked it, Vera sighed happily. Then the realization that the elevator, in spite of its stops at every floor to handle the noon-day rush, was plunging from second to first, galvanized the dream-locked girl into action. Within another second or two he would be walking out of her life forever unless she could stop him somehow, make him aware of herself as a person, as a girl, a desirable girl—a girl who—well, why not?—had fallen in love with him. She had no time for being amazed at herself, to consider. She stepped toward the front of the car and as she did so she dropped her black leather handbag so that it fell upon the smartly shod foot which rested against the slim, expensive black cane upon which he leaned.

Her heart beat suffocatingly as she turned toward him with a word of apology on her trembling lips. She watched him as he bent his tall, slim body to pick up the bag, felt an almost irresistible desire to reach out and touch the gleaming, smooth cap of his seal like hair, had a tremulous smile of thanks ready for him when he should straighten up and hand the bag to her with a bow. Of course he would bow—and look deeply into her eyes with those narrowed, quizzical brown eyes of his—

"Oh, thank you!" she stammered, started to smile, then the mouth which Aunt Flora had called adorable and kissable drew into a tight circle of pain, for the man with whom she had fallen so suddenly and completely in love was looking at her as if she were not there, as if she were a man. He even looked slightly annoyed as he turned toward his negligible companion and walked out of the elevator with him.

Vera Cameron stood in the empty car, unable to move a step. The elevator operator glanced over his shoulder at her—annoyed, too—"Ah out, mks. Makh floor."

game. She will be a new girl—anything, just to be at the Minnetonka in June.

EDUCATE DAUGHTERS IN CHARM

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

ALBERT CARR writes an article in a popular magazine, entitled "Young Night by Our Nell." He criticizes our modern method of education, or rather the way we handle our girls in school. We make them study all the things the boys study, he asserts, and encourage them in boy sports, when all the time they should be having a course in "charm."

He states in many complicated paragraphs that the most attractive and charming girl gets the best man for a husband. At least it amounts to that. And he believes in every girl having her charm. What chance is she going to have against her luckier sisters unless someone takes her in hand and tells her how to dress, behave, walk, and do all the things that nowadays make the woman a fit candidate for the marriage market? It matters not so much if she can make a "cherry" as whether or not she knows the kind of powder and lip-stick that match her complexion.

The author of this interesting article shouldn't be right but he is. I've been to a good many weddings and I'm willing to wager that although the bridesmaids may have been good pie bakers, the bride usually wasn't, but instead, someone had taught her to be charming—even though she were not to the manner born.

There is only one thing I take exception to. Why wish the girls in the schools? The author suggests that the work, to be perfect, must begin at six. That looks as though the public schools are looked to, to become the seminaries in this new course in feminism. Were it a separate course in a university that he suggests the difficulty would be removed at once. "Belles made while you wait," so to speak.

I have always had great admiration for the teacher who sent Johnny home from school to be washed. Johnny soon returned with a note bearing the memorable words: "I send Johnny to school to be learned, not smelt. He ain't no rose." An old story, but involving the principle of pedagogy with which we have not finished. At least as it involves Johnny's sister.

Shouldn't charm, like charity, begin at home? Isn't it a mother's job to teach Nellie to be a lady?

Styles In Top Coats For Men Multiply And Become Much Dressier-- Double Breasted Navies In Lead

BY CURTIS WOOD

NEW YORK.—Here are the newest modes for autumnal top coat wear.

Heretofore men have had to fall into line in the matter of seasonal style and dress—but not so in this individualistic year of 1927. The same wide choice that prevailed in spring and summer wear will carry over to autumn.

MEN REALLY NEED THREE!

Top coats this year as a whole are much dressier than those of past seasons. There is a wider divergence of styles, tailoring and material, for one thing, will where the usual tweed garment used to suffice the well-dressed man now finds it necessary to outfit himself with at least three models to arm himself for all occasions.

The leading model offered by New York clothiers at this time is a dark blue, double-breasted top coat. It is cut in swanky lines with a rolling lapel that is enhanced by not buttoning the top button. It has a breast pocket for the inevitable white silk handkerchief and, incidentally, no other combination but while will do, although a bit of blue edging is sometimes considered within good taste.

THE 'KERCHIEF MARS ON MAKES

Many an otherwise well-dressed man will spoil his tasty ensemble of pearl gray that, black shoes, mahogany or malleable stick, by inserting a gaudy and atrocious colored handkerchief in his breast pocket.

This model leading the list is made of wool with sloping shoulders, an excellent improvement over last year's ungainly "squared back" coats. It has flap pockets set conveniently high and wide plain buttons. In length it comes a good four to six inches below the knees. Nothing "skimpy" about this coat.

REGAN SLEEVES ARE CHIC AGAIN

Another model similar to this is single-breasted with a high small lapel and velvet collar. It is for formal night wear and is usually worn regularly by men of the older and more conservative type. It follows, it follows the same trend, sloping shoulders, high pockets with wide flaps and below-the-knee length.

For morning or business wear a serviceable tweed pattern has been gotten out that will enjoy probably the largest sales because of its ability to withstand wear and tear.

SINGLE-BREASTED COATS ARE FORMAL

It has slash pockets, regan sleeves and high, small lapels. It has only three buttons, unusually large, and is cut with a box back, rather full with no event.

These three models cover the entire autumnal top coat field for men. They are now on view at the leading Fifth Avenue shops and a few snappy August nights have stimulated unusually early sales.

ETIQUET HINTS

1. What are some of the most essential assets in becoming popular socially?
2. Can one develop such assets?
3. Do mannerisms ever enhance a personality?

THE ANSWERS

1. Ease and a pleasant, friendly manner.
2. Somewhat, by considering others and always trying to act natural.
3. If real they may. Affectations never do.

Like a child that is about to burst into tears over being ignored, "But Faith has alienated its affections, I'm afraid. You'd think it was hers, the way she monopolizes it."

"Oh, Cherry?" Faith cried involuntarily. Then, remembering the occasion, she smiled around the table. "That's right. You are playing mother to Cherry's infant while she works, aren't you?"

George cut in eagerly. "Great! I'll paint you as a Madonna. That's what I've always wanted to do with you. When can I start work on the picture?"

"Well, I like that!" Cherry protested, her voice breaking. "It's my baby and if anybody is going to be painted as Madonna with it, I'll be the one. And I have the dearest lace scarf that I can drape over my back."

"You a Madonna?" George broke into a shout of laughter. Then as Cherry's golden eyes flashed lightning at him, he leaned toward her and chuckled her impudently under the chin. "Listen, sweet child, if I paint you as anything it will be as the typical flapper or a Jazzmania."

Faith was about to interject with a firm refusal to pose for the picture, since Cherry and Bob were both so obviously upset over the idea, when it came to her with sudden clarity that this one evening of social triumph for her had already enhanced her immeasurably in her husband's eyes, though of course he would not admit for the world that his admiration could there be in keeping him interested in letting him realize that others found her lovely and desirable, too?

"Of course Cherry will love having the baby's picture made with me," she said quickly. "And thank you, George. You're a dear!"

READ THE STORY. THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

WHILE Clowdy slept upon the ground, the others sat and ran around and got a lot of exercise which made them all feel grand. They played as hard as they could, until the games began to drag. In fact they grew so very tired they simply could not stand.

Said Copsy, with a fagged out smile, "Let's all flop down and sleep a while. When we wake up, we'll look around for something else to do." In about five minutes more, it seems, they all were lost in lands of dream. It was a funny sight to see "cause they were snoring, too."

The hour slipped by till afternoon. Then Clowdy woke, and pretty soon he found a funny feather and he had a happy bunch. "I'll tickle each one's nose," said he. "They'll be as scared as they can be. And when he started, that's the way he finally woke the bunch."

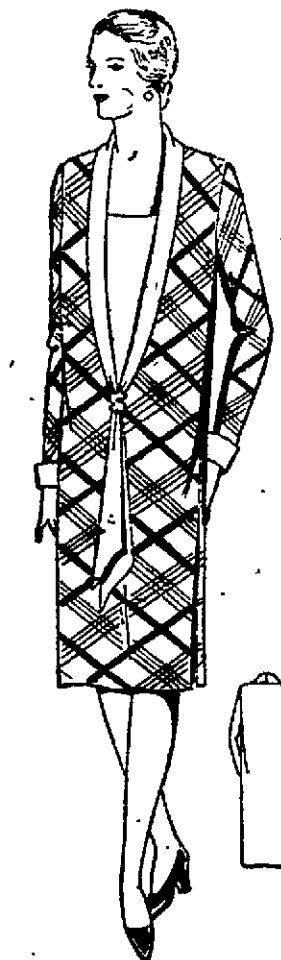

One Goofy Goo then said aloud, "Just follow me, you happy crowd." And off he went across a hill with all the rest behind. "Say, where's he going?" Clowdy cried. "I've run so far. I'll split my side." "Oh, be a sport," said Scouty. "This is something I don't mind."

And then the Goofy Goo stepped short, and shouted, "Here's a chance for sport." He pointed to a nearby tree where hung a dandy swing. "We'll all have fun and swing up high, who knows but what we'll reach the sky. We'll each take turns, and all play fair, and each one have a fling."

Then all but Scouty climbed aboard, and he just stood and loudly roared. "You sure look very funny," but you're swinging much too slow. Please don't be scared but hang on tight. I'll show you how to do this right." And, very shortly Scouty pushed the whole bunch to and fro.

So," answers Bernard de Voto, Northwestern University teacher in the September Harper's Magazine. "One does not teach women in that way. It may be the devilish obstinacy of the sex. One painstakingly examines all the facts, and in every way prepares oneself for intelligent opposition."

DRESS OF AMERICAN FLAPPERS IS THREATENING THE WORLD

Washington—(AP)—The flapper of 1927, her older sister who held the stage a few years ago, and the younger flapper of 1928, are threatening world morality, bringing opprobrium upon the name of American women in foreign lands.

This, in brief, is the belief of Mrs. John B. Henderson, noted leader of social reform in the national capital. "In the name of a poor kind of freedom," says Mrs. Henderson, "the American flapper, in indecent apparel, threatens not only America, but the world itself."

"In certain foreign countries American women are considered undesirable and even dangerous. In other countries respectable families bring up their young women with the very greatest care."

"In China, American women are thrust aside as teachers or companions for their young. Missionaries are discredited."

"In Japan, American business flappers are invading the land, and in one case, policemen were called for Japanese relief, says a Japanese journal."

"In Italy, the Pope of Rome is an active ecclesiastical chieftain with banner flying for moral righteousness. A proclamation in the Osservatore Romano, the official Vatican organ, broadsides against the American film industry now much too often a representative of flapperism."

"The glory of America has been not only its idealism, but also its ideal womanhood—the latter intelligent, efficient, largely self-supporting, 59 per cent free of drug habits, and above all inherently and naturally respectable."

"That former high standard of American women now needs a readjustment."

"How much longer must one endure public streets filled with women bare-legged to the knees—as evidenced by carefully selected stockings of flesh color; high heeled slippers, upsetting the natural balance and rhythm of the spinal organs; faces painted beyond the trade signal of the former underworld? This occurs not only in public streets and drawing rooms but in business offices and industrial establishments everywhere.

"Do not our sons, husbands and fathers now need protection from our women?"

"It is natural and proper to look one's best, also to desire the admiration of men. Poor fools! Not to know that the best of men hate a brazen disregard of modesty and the proprieties generally; they give a certain attention, but seldom marry the kind here indicated."

"For three years American respectability has waited patiently for a desirable change from French fashions in women's apparel. We have had atrocious French fashions before, tight corsets, long heavy skirts, high heels, etc. But in America they never before were indecent."

"The changes to a fuller skirt, lighter weight, reaching one or two inches above the ankle tops and loose waists are easy. There is no reason why American manufacturers assisted by French artists should not supply the world with the most beautiful and approved of women's apparel."

"Let independent America now become a world leader for normal health, efficiency, and propriety."

"Let employers employ only women properly dressed. Let schools and colleges, women's clubs, the press, individual leaders become the allies."

"Aux Armes Citoyens!"

"Fashion is a tyrant but America is not a good place for tyrants."

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

Faith, sitting at the foot of the exquisitely appointed dinner table, on Mr. Pruitt's left, with George around the corner of the square table at her right, with Cherry as his partner, found herself the pivot upon which the dinner conversation seemed determined to revolve. It was a new sensation, one which caused her eyes to sparkle and her tongue to linger amazingly.

She surprised herself by saying clever things, making George listen to prisms which kept the others laughing gaily and admiringly—all except Cherry. For Cherry was not happy. The spotlight had, for some reason which she could not fathom been switched from her to her hitherto socially negligible sister.

George, seated at her right, leaned almost constantly toward Faith, serving her compliments even more assiduously than the well-trained butler plied her with delicate foods. Across the table, Bob tilted gallantly to make conversation in a flatteringly unobtrusive way with Mrs. Pruitt, but Cherry, noted that his blue eyes kept straying to Faith, seeking her out over the top of the flower centerpiece.

"I'm still hoping you'll let me paint your portrait, Faith," George said suddenly, in a full of the conversation. "Did she ever tell you Hathaway told me I should let her work to serve as a model for me? She's absolutely the only girl in the town that could bring me to dip a brush into paint. Won't you help me to persuade her, old man?"

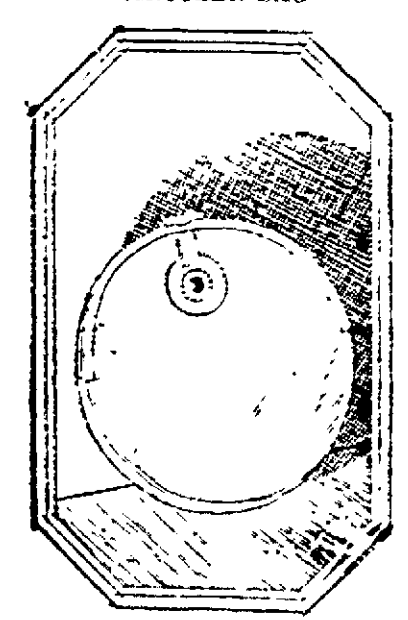

Faith gasped mentally, but her face was still smiling and serene as she waited for Bob's answer. It came slowly, as a flush changed the tan of Bob's cheeks to bronze.

"Of course I'd be glad to have a portrait of my wife, Pruitt, if she cares to let you. She's pretty busy, of course with the baby."

"Oh, you have a baby?" And, as Faith's words, came so quickly, Faith with a pale and gold mouth.

Mrs. Buck Wins Prizes At Tourney

Mrs. Howard Buck of Neenah won the prize in the putting contest held by women of Butte des Morts Country club preceding the regular weekly tournament Wednesday afternoon on the club links and also won the prize for low score in the regular game. She had 18 putts on nine holes in the putting contest and had a low score of 54 with a handicap of 20.

Eight women took part in the play Wednesday afternoon. The next regular tournament will be held next Wednesday. Women who plan to play are to sign up at the club by Tuesday evening. Mrs. Eric Lindberg announced.

Plans are being made to hold the next invitation tournament for women golfers of the Northeastern Wisconsin association at Butte des Morts club. The tournament will probably be held the third week in September. Clubs from all over the association will be represented.

LOCAL EAGLES WILL ATTEND VALLEY PICNIC

The local aeris of Fraternal Order of Eagles will attend the Fox River valley Eagle picnic to be given under the auspices of the Fond du Lac aeris Sunday at Hollywood park at Wolf lake. It was decided at the regular business meeting of the lodge Wednesday night in Eagle hall. The affair will be a basket picnic and the Fond du Lac lodge will furnish coffee and cream. It is expected that about 5,000 persons from the valley, including lodges from Appleton, Chilton, Neenah, Menasha, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac and Princeton, will attend the affair.

A program of contests will be provided and a baseball game will feature the program. A tug-o-war, races, horseshoe pitching and other contests will be held for men, women and children. A dance will be held in the evening at the park pavilion.

TWO DELEGATES APPOINTED TO S. S. CONVENTION

Delegates to the Sunday school convention of the Sheboygan Classis of the Reformed church were appointed at the meeting of teachers and officers of the Sunday school of First Reformed church Wednesday evening at the parsonage. Miss Ruth Brandt and Miss Ruth Meyer were appointed delegates with Miss Tillie Jahn and Mrs. E. Franz as alternates. The convention will be held Friday and Saturday, Sept. 2 and 3 at the Mission house at Town Herman, Wis.

Plans were discussed at the meeting for the rally and church picnic to be held Sept. 18. Regular business was also discussed.

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

The pointer for today is: WHEN THE ACE OF TRUMPS IS ADVERSELY HELD, IT IS ESSENTIALLY IMPORTANT TO OBTAIN A DISCARD BEFORE TRUMPS ARE LED.

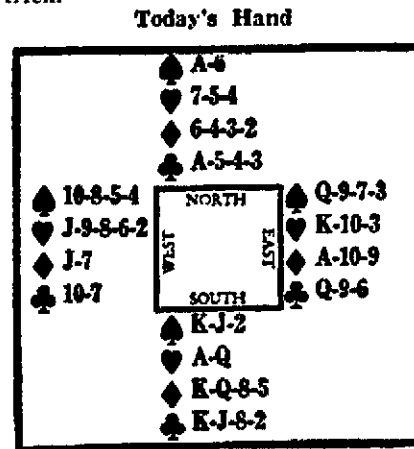

Yesterday's Hand

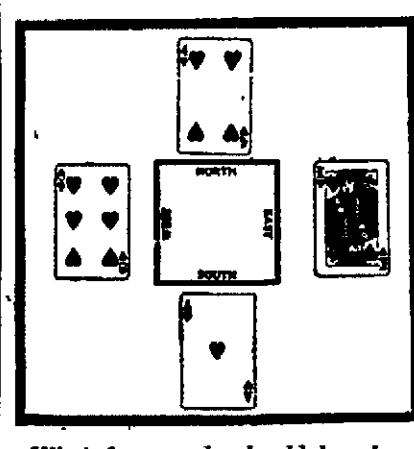

South Declarer; Contract Spades. The cards played to the first trick were: West led King of Clubs; North played Four of Clubs; East Six of Clubs; South Ace of Clubs.

My answer slip names the four cards that should be played to the second trick as follows: South should lead King of Hearts; West play Four of Hearts; North Ace of Hearts; East Deuce of Hearts.

My reason now: When Declarer wins the first trick he is anxious to exhaust trumps; but can see that if he should do so immediately he will lose to the Ace of Trumps and the adversaries then will win two Clubs tricks. As the Declarer must subsequently lose the Ace of Diamonds, it would not be possible for him to make more than three-odd should he lead a trump to trick 2. It is essential that he discard a losing Club and this can be accomplished by leading the King of Hearts, taking it in Dummy with Ace and then leading the Queen of Hearts to trick 2. Overriding South's King of Hearts costs Dummy a Heart trick but it gains a trick for Declarer because, played in that way (a trump being led at trick 4), the Declarer will lose only one Club in addition to the Ace of Spades and Diamonds; played in any other way two Clubs and two Aces would be lost. Two Diamond discards for South would not gain a trick.

South the Declarer; Contract No Trump. The cards played to the first trick were:

What four cards should be played to the second trick? ANSWER SLIP OF AUGUST 25: South should lead King of Hearts; West should play Four of Hearts; North should play Ace of Hearts; East should play Deuce of Hearts.

VICTIM OF ACCIDENT STILL IN HOSPITAL

The condition of Andrew Gehring, Freedom farmer who suffered injuries which resulted in the amputation of one leg and fracture of another, is reported as fair. Gehring was injured when he was thrown from a moving machine when the horses ran away. The blades of the mower mangled the leg which later was amputated. Gehring is in a Green Bay hospital.

LADY FORESTERS PLAN FOR OPEN CARD PARTY

Plans for an open card party to be held Sept. 14 at Catholic home were discussed at the meeting of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters Wednesday night in Catholic home. Mrs. R. C. Winters is chairman of arrangements for the affair and Mrs. Charles Wetengel is assistant chairman. Members of the organization whose names begin with T, U, V, W, X, Y and Z will assist on the committee.

Cards were played following the business meeting and prizes were won by Mrs. Dora Brown and Mrs. E. C. Otto at bridge and by Mrs. Joseph Schreiter and Mrs. Joseph Doerflinger at schafkopf. Beginning in September, two meetings will be held each month on the second and fourth Wednesdays. Only one meeting was held each month during July and August.

172 INSTALLATIONS OF WATER DURING SUMMER

Applications for new water services are being received at the rate of about 10 a week, according to Fred R. Morris, secretary of the water department. There have been 172 installations made since Feb. 10, said Mr. Morris, and the number probably will reach 300 or 250 before the middle of November when the department stops installation for the winter months except in cases of emergency.

Mr. Morris said no installations were made during the winter months unless absolutely necessary, because of the increased cost of excavating due to frozen ground.

PRINT POEM BY REXFORD IN WISCONSIN MAGAZINE

Three poems appear on the poets page of the September issue of the Wisconsin Magazine, which are of interest to residents of Appleton and vicinity. One, Adrift, was written by Eben E. Rexford, famous Shiocton poet, for whom the Outagamie County Pioneers association is attempting to secure a memorial. The others, written by Oshkosh women, are titled Lake Winnebago and Lake Butte des Morts and they describe the beauties of the two nearby lakes, well known to local residents.

Green Bay Lodge Invites Moose Women To Meeting

Appleton chapter of Women of Mooseheart Legion will attend the regular business meeting of the Green Bay chapter on Oct. 12 at Green Bay. It was decided at the regular meeting of the local organization Wednesday night in Moose temple. The Kaukauna chapter has also been invited to attend.

Plans were made for an open card party to be held Sept. 11 at Moose temple. A short business meeting will be held preceding the party. Mrs. Frank Foreman is chairman of the committee in charge.

It was decided to hold a shower for the fall bazaar to be held in November. The shower will be held at the next meeting on the second Wednesday. Members having articles they wish to contribute to the shower are to bring them to the temple and leave them with the bazaar chairman, Mrs. George Auers.

A class of candidates will be initiated at the meeting of the chapter on the fourth Wednesday in September. A party will be held for members following the business meeting.

Meetings of the chapter will be held semi-monthly on the second and fourth Wednesday beginning in September.

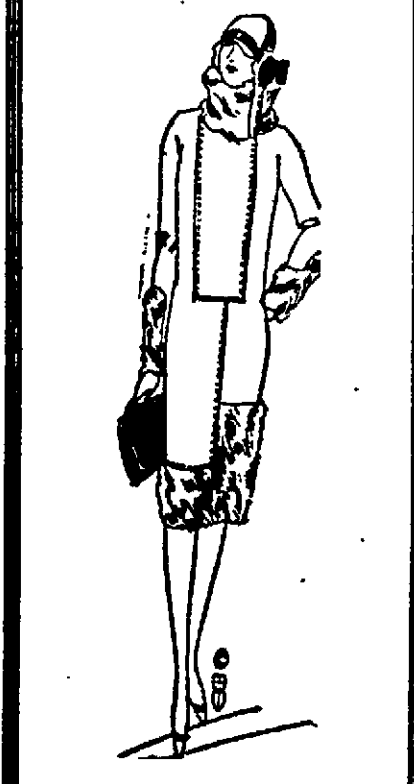

SEEK LOCAL BUSINESS DISTRICT EXTENSION

An application to have two lots at the southeast corner of Meade and Franklin-sts placed in a local business district will be acted on by the city plan commission the first part of next week, according to Mayor A. C. Rule, chairman. At present two lots are occupied by a grocery owned by John F. Bartman and a small cottage. Mr. Bartman asks to have the two lots placed in a business district so that he can tear down the cottage and remodel his store.

KAUKAUNA-LITTLE CHUTE-KIMBERLY

NEARBY
TOWNSKAUKAUNA MAYOR
RESIGNS POSITION
IN BANK DISPUTESullivan Opposed to Bankers' Move in Attempting to Secure Tax Refund

Kaukauna—Mayor W. C. Sullivan, who has been a member of the board of directors of the Farmers and Merchants Bank of this city for many years, filed his resignation with the board Wednesday noon, the resignation to take effect at once.

Mayor Sullivan presented his resignation to the board in anticipation of a controversy that is certain to arise between the bankers of the city and the city of Kaukauna relative to a tax refund which the city of Kaukauna is now seeking. The mayor's decision to resign came when the directors of the three local banks voted to jointly hire an attorney to try and secure a refund from the city. Mayor Sullivan is of the opinion they are not entitled to this refund under the supreme court decision in the Hartford Bank case. The controversy was caused by the law recently passed by both branches of the state legislature exempting the banks from paying any real estate tax and making them liable for income tax only.

"DUTY TO TAXPAYERS"
When interviewed Wednesday afternoon, Mayor Sullivan said, "It would be unethical and embarrassing to attempt to serve two masters at one time and my first duty is to the taxpayers of the city of Kaukauna. I am open to conviction on this or any other question that affects the vital interests of the city but unless I am provided with legal advice entirely different from that which I have at the present time I will advise the city council not to refund to the banks any money whatsoever."

"As a citizen and a taxpayer I am likewise opposed to a refund, morally as well as legally. I am opposed to the new bank tax law."

"I am also opposed to other features of the law pertaining to assessing personal property of the bank and I believe the law to be unwise and unjust. Under the present bank law it will mean that many banks in the state will cease taxation; that industry, the merchant and the small home owner will be compelled to pay over one and a half million dollars in taxes that the banks formerly paid. It is shifting the burden of taxes from a group that can best afford to pay and placing it on the shoulders of a group already taxed to the limit. It is taking $121,000 off the Kaukauna tax roll and compelling the rest of the tax payers to carry the burden."

ESCAPE TAXATION

"The tax secured from the income of a bank under the new law is problematical and the best information I can secure from the highest authorities in the state is that on a basis of income many of our banks are escaping taxation. At any rate our city will receive but one half of the income tax. Under the new bank law the Wisconsin banks are the only institutions that are entirely exempt from paying a personal property tax. Granting that the dispute may involve a technically, legal or otherwise, the plain fact remains, I am officially and reliably advised, that from now on the Wisconsin banks will pay but one-fifth of the tax they formerly paid which is a basis of their earnings and their ability to pay is ridiculously and shamefully low."

"Therefore with such information before me I will not support any movement to refund city money to Kaukauna banks just because a few other cities in the state were charitable and liberal enough with the people's money to establish a precedent."

KAUKAUNA THIEVES

STEAL THREE TIRES

Kaukauna—Two tires were stolen from a roadster belonging to F. Olm shortly before 11 o'clock Tuesday night. Mr. Olm had his car parked in the mill parking space at the Combined Locks Paper company and when he came out to get his car at 11 o'clock he found that the spare tire and one of the other tires had been stolen. A tire was taken off a sedan owned by Frank Nois of this city about the same time. The thieves took the tire off the wheel and left the spare. The watchman at the parking place did not see anyone within the grounds according to reports.

ROTARIANS PLANNING
PICNIC AT KAUKAUNAGun Shoot Will be Feature of Outing to be Held on Sept.

Kaukauna—R. B. Goodman of Marlette spoke on reforestation at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary club at the Legion building Wednesday noon.

Mr. Goodman said that there was plenty of timber in Wisconsin to last for many years if it were taken care of in the proper manner. At the present time the lumber interests have secured legislation whereby the man owning property with timber on it does not have to pay as large taxes as the man who has cleared his land. Mr. Goodman believed this would tend to have land owners keep the timber growing rather than cut it down.

Plans were made at the meeting for a picnic for members of the Rotary club to be held at the Kaukauna Gun club grounds on Sept. 7. Joseph, Levee and Joseph McCarthy were named on a committee of three to make arrangements for the day. The picnic is scheduled to start about 3 o'clock. A feature of the afternoon will be a gun shoot for members of the Rotary club. The "fats" and the "beans" will engage in their annual baseball battle. J. O. Pessen has been chosen as captain of the "beans" and the "fats" have named Hubert Fassbender. This picnic will be for members of the Rotary club only.

HOMANS TRIM BANKERS
IN GAME AT KAUKAUNA

Kaukauna—Homans trampled on the Bankers Wednesday evening in the ball game and when it was all over the former had won the game by a 23 to 11 score and Charles Wince, the score keeper, had writer's cramp. Up until the final inning the Transfermen led 23 to 5 but darkness made it possible for the Bankers to get 6 runs home before being retired in the seventh. This win keeps Homans tied for first place in the Twilight league with the strong Volunteers.

LARGER ENROLLMENT
IN KAUKAUNA SCHOOLFew Vacancies Left for Children in Model School Department

Kaukauna—Decorators and painters have just completed redecorating the interior of the Outagamie rural normal school building and the building is now ready for the opening of school on Monday, Sept. 5. W. J. Hagman, principal of the school, believes last year's enrollment of 33 students will be exceeded this term according to the present rate in which entrance applications are being turned in.

Prof. Hagman said Wednesday that there still were a few vacancies for children in the model department at the school in the first, second and third grades. This department is maintained to give the student teachers an opportunity to get actual practice work. Grades from the first to the sixth grades are maintained at the school each term but the higher three grades have complete enrollments. There is no tuition charge for entrance into the model department, in fact it really costs less, the principal said, because the text books are furnished by the school. Any parents desiring to have their children entered in this model school should get in touch with Prof. Hagman in the next few days as there is only room for a limited number of students.

WILL LAY MAINS ON
2 KIMBERLY STREETSGeorge De Noble of Little Chute Is Awarded Contract
by Water Commission

Kimberly—Water mains will be laid on James and Henry-sts, it was decided at a recent meeting of the village water commission. The contract for the digging of the trenches and the laying of the pipe was awarded to George DeNoble of Little Chute. Three bids were entered.

Work will be started just as soon as the pipe arrives, which probably will be within the next two or three weeks. Seven hundred feet of six inch pipe, three hundred feet of eight inch pipe and one hydrant will be used for the new line. The work is expected to be completed by Oct. 1.

About sixty girls of the book mill department of the Kimberly-Clark mill held a picnic at High Cliff Tuesday evening. A supper was served at 6 o'clock after which a softball game between the blondes and brunettes took place. The score was tied at six all when the game was called on account of darkness. The rest of the evening was spent in dancing.

Fifty-six friends surprised Mrs. James Goffrey at a miscellaneous shower Tuesday evening at the clubhouse. The evening was spent in playing cards and dice and prizes were awarded to Mrs. John Fox and Mrs. Elmer Valley at schafkopf, and to Mrs. John DeWitt and Mrs. Gerald Jervald at dice.

TEACHER INSTITUTE
IS HELD AT CHILTONLarge Number of Mentors of Calumet-co Attend Annual Event

Special to Post-Crescent
Chilton—A two day institute for the teachers of Calumet-co was held in the assembly room of the high school Tuesday and Wednesday. It was well attended. Miss Anna Barnard, newly elected county superintendent, and Miss Edith Sattler, of Ripon, newly appointed supervising teacher for this county directed the meet.

Singing for the two days was conducted by Miss Mary Lorenz, formerly of California, but for the past year a teacher in Iron River, Mich.

The program Tuesday included an address by A. Shell, of the Laurel Book Co., who talked on penmanship and reading; a talk by Miss Sattler on supervision work; a demonstration in spelling by Sharp Todd of the American Book Co.; a talk by Gido L. Weber, of this city, on agriculture club work; and a lesson in geography by E. Huchsch of Chicago.

A unique feature of the institute was a talk given by Miss Esther Exner, known as Cheerio from Laughterland. Miss Exner is connected with the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association, and the subject of her talk was Teaching Health through Plays and Dramas.

She also gave a Punch and Judy health show, which seeks to impress on children the importance of fresh air, rest, good food and cleanliness.

On Wednesday most of the time was taken up by Miss Mary Roberts, Fond du Lac, who spoke on reading and language. Miss Roberts is supervisor in the grades of the Fond du Lac public schools.

Miss Letitia Hintz of Neenahville, visited at the home of G. M. Morrissey Tuesday and Wednesday. She also attended the teacher's institute.

Mrs. Anna Oshoff visited in Neenah Monday. On her return she was accompanied by her nephew, William Steudel, who submitted to a minor operation at Theda Clark hospital.

Tower Hill Park Holds Memories Of Long Ago

Tower hill state park, located on the south bank of the Wisconsin river across from the village of Spring Green, marks the site of the old, shot tower of pre-Civil war days and of the once thriving village of Helena.

These establishments date back to 1831, when Daniel Whitney, an enterprising Green Bay merchant, fur trader and river man, came to the present site of Tower Hill. At that time the business of shot making was controlled by Missouri people and the lead from southwestern Wisconsin was shipped down the Mississippi to New Orleans and then by boat to New York, Boston and other points.

Whitney had stores and trading establishment at Grei Bay and Portage and decided to add to his other enterprises the business of shot making. As a consequence, the shot tower was started and after drilling, by hand, a shaft about two hundred feet deep and eight feet in diameter through the solid limestone and a tunnel about one hundred feet in length in a horizontal direction at the base to give access to the river, the actual work of smelting the lead and making the shot commenced. The upper wooden portion of the shot tower has long since vanished, but the old shaft and tunnel are still there as they were almost a century ago.

About this shot tower arose the city of Helena. It was originally land used by General Dodge, but the chief building was destroyed during the Black Hawk War of 1830-32, and the timber used for rafts for crossing the river.

The village grew rapidly until during the late forties. It boasted of two hotels, two stores, a cooper shop, a large fur house and dock, a post office and 25 to 30 houses.

Every other evening from fifty to one hundred four-horse teams arrived from Dodgeville, Mineral Point and other mining locations and the work of smelting and shipping the shot, the landing of barges and the river traffic made Helena a busy village. This continued until the early sixties when new mechanical methods of handling lead were developed.

The coming of the railroad changed the whole conception of transportation and the opening up of new sources of mineral caused Helena to wither and vanish. Nothing of this once thriving village now remains except the old shot tower and the head stones of the old village cemetery.

Warner Baxter, long a favorite, is once more seen astride a horse as John Curry. Opposite him, in her first American role, is charming Marietta Miller, who has just been brought over from Europe triumphantly. There's a freshness and verve to the characterizations of these two principals that is particularly likable.

Ford Sterling, Paramount's inimitable comedian, his usual funny self as Fainless Perkins, a desert faker, is ably abetted by Heime Conklin, Wallace MacDonald has the principal heavy role.

The story, however, is that of the Indians and in this enactment the Navajo Indians themselves play an active part. Virtually the entire picture was made on their Arizona and Utah reservations.

John Waters, director of such successes as "Man of the Forest," "The Mysterious Rider" and "Arizona Bound" adds to his laurels with "Drums of the Desert."

At Fischer's Appleton Theatre this Saturday is another of those Zane Grey stories of the desert and the red man that has made Grey the acknowledged peer of all writers on the subject of frontier America. Grey knows the desert country and he knows Indians.

In Paramount's screen version of "Desert Bound"—"Drums of the Desert"—a new tempo in western drama has been created, refreshing in that among other things it brings to the screen new faces.

YANKS HALT TIGER WIN STREAK AT 13 TO BREAK OWN SLUMP

Lazzeri Smacks Homer With Sacks Loaded And Two Down To Cinch Game

Carroll Had Walked Gehrig, Muesel to Get at Tony; Cubs Split Even

How They Stand

The Yankees have come out of a slump at a very opportune moment. After mediocre showings against some of the second division clubs, Miller Huggins' henchmen Wednesday applied pressure in the climax to stop a 13-game winning streak of the Detroit Tigers. The score was 9-5 and the manner in which the victory was achieved was a sensation in itself. With the bases packed, two hands away and the score tied, Tony Lazzeri hit the ball over the left field fence at Navin field. Owen Carroll, the Detroit pitcher, missed Gehrig and Muesel to get at the Italian slacker.

Gehrig collected two doubles and Ruth went hitless. "Blunkenship shaded Ruthing in a hurling duel at Chicago and the White Sox beat Boston, 4-3.

"Hollis Thurston was ineffective and Washington lost to the Cleveland Indians 4-1.

"Rube Walberg stopped the St. Louis Browns after they had won six games in a row. The Philadelphia speedball thrower poked out a homer in the sixth inning, sending his team into the lead. The Mackians won by a 4-3 count.

CUBS SPLIT EVEN
The Chicago Cubs could no longer hold an even break in their double header with the tail end Phillies. The Phils won the first game 7-6 with a five run rally in the ninth.

Chicago started off the second game with a six run bombardment that eventually blossomed into a 19-1 triumph.

Pittsburg and the Braves were scheduled at Boston but rain interfered.

LOCAL GOLF CLUBS IN CHAMPION MATCH

Butte des Morts, Riverview Battle for 1927 City Title Saturday

Two titles can be claimed for 1927 by golfers of Butte des Morts country club should they close their interclub season Saturday with a victory over the Riverview Country club team, also of Appleton. At the Butte des Morts links, Butte des Morts beat Riverview at Riverview and a second win Saturday will give the host club the city title for the year. The win also will give it a strong claim to the Fox river valley title, with six wins and no defeats over the best in the valley.

VALLEY TITLE CLAIMING
The local team has beaten Riverview once and also holds decisive wins over Oshkosh and Green Bay golfers, both here and in the rival cities. However, should Riverview win Saturday, the city title would be a tie with each team having a victory and Butte des Morts perfect claim for a valley title will be spoiled.

Riverview, playing at home, gave Butte des Morts its hardest battle of the year, losing by a much closer margin than the Bay or Sawdust city clubs. The invaders are determined to make Saturday's match a real title battle for their local rivals and they believe that even on the strange course they can make the competition strong. Ray Peterson is Captain of the Riverview team and J. J. Plank will lead the Butte des Morts linksmen.

CUBS WIN ANOTHER SPORT
The Appleton Cubs took their second victory of the week Wednesday morning at Brandt park, trouncing the Appleton Yankees, 7-4. The team is composed of boys under 16 years of age. The Cubs lineup was: Eers, catcher; Priebe, p. Peotter, 1b; Hertzfeldt, 2b; Buxton, 3b; Klipstein, ss; Sanders 1f; Hertzfeldt, rf; St. Louis, cf.

Cleveland—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, won from Wilson Tarbo, Cleveland (12).

Cubs Still Have Hard Row To Hoe In Fight For Flag

BY BILLY EVANS
There is no doubt about Manager Joe McCarthy of the Chicago Cubs knowing his stuff.

In discussing the National League race recently he spoke thusly: "The second division clubs in the National League are in a sense the fellows that make the National League race a close one and prevent any club from running away with the race. Any of them are liable to rise up and smite you not once but twice in the same place. I mean the neck, on the same day."

McCarthy made such a speech before his club invaded Boston a few days back and all the Braves did was to take a double header from the Cubs, winning each game by a one run margin.

GENE'S HANDLER IN FRANCE BACK ON JOB

Speculator, N. Y.—(P)—Jimmy Bronson, one of Gene Tunney's handlers while he was fighting with the Marine Corps in France, will in the champion's corner when he meets Jack Dempsey at Chicago.

Bronson's selection; the departure of Paul Caviler, a sparring partner; the return to camp of Eddie Egan, former amateur heavyweight champion; and a visit of another group of the champion's friends marked a round of leisure in camp Wednesday.

Aside from seven miles on the road the champion took things easy, abstaining from boxing.

Present plans call for Tunney's departure for Chicago next Wednesday.

NEEDS NO PROTECTION
Tunney has been boxing without a headguard, although his sparring partners have worn them. When a newspaper man called Gene's attention to this and asked the reason he was told the protection was not needed.

Jimmy Goodrich, Buffalo, won from Eddie "Kid" Wagner, Philadelphia (10).

Roberto Roberti, Italy, knocked out Pietro Torri, Brooklyn (5).

Cleveland—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, won from Wilson Tarbo, Cleveland (12).

There is no doubt about Manager Joe McCarthy of the Chicago Cubs knowing his stuff.

VON ELM LOSES IN AMATEUR GOLF MEET

1926 Champion Eliminated by Harry Legg; Jones, Evans, Ouimet Favored

Minneapolis.—(P)—There will be a new National amateur golf champion this year, but there is at least a three to eight chance that the new one will be a former title holder, for Bobby Jones, Chick Evans, and Francis Ouimet Thursday remained in play.

George Von Elm of Los Angeles, failed in defending his laurels in the second match round Wednesday falling before a par onslaught by Harry Legg of the home club, one down, on the 18th hole.

He had been slow in qualifying, taking 154 strokes as compared with 142 by Bobby Jones, the medalist, but he had shot par in the first round to win and he was only one above perfect figures in his losing battle. He had not, however, hit the brilliant stride that carried him to victory last year against Jones.

Jones for a time seemed destined to pass out of the fray, for in the first match round he suffered a severe slump, taking an approximate 78 and being down out of the way to Maurice McCarthy of New York. The youngster weakened on the last four holes to lose two down.

JONES VS JOHNSTON
Bobby came back strong in the afternoon, and scoring one under par for the 16 holes played, ousted the New York lad who had led the field in medal play on the first day, Eugene Homans. This victory brought him face to face Thursday with Jimmie Johnston of the home club.

Johnston Wednesday defeated Dick Jones, New York and Don Carrick, the Canadian champion.

Legg's victory over Von Elm followed a similar one over Rudy Knepper. The conquests brought him into battle array against Roland Mackenzie of Washington who had the only extra hole matches, having to go 19 holes in both rounds to win.

Chick Evans will meet Eddie Held and Francis Ouimet will play Phillips Finlay, who was third in the qualifying rounds with 147.

NO SPARRING FOR DEMPSEY THIS WEEK

Erstwhile Manassa Mauler Hits Bag and Dummies in Secret Workout

Chicago.—(P)—There is a cloak of secrecy around Jack Dempsey these days as he pursues his way toward the comeback bout with Gene Tunney and the title.

Stripped to the glistening blue of his training trunks, the erstwhile Manassa mauler has definitely swung into action with only newspaper men and his retinue of followers witnessing his early preparations.

The arrival of Dave Shade, California, middleweight and Dempsey's sparring partner, was the signal for the opening of activities at the Lincoln Fields camp.

The program the remainder of the week calls for road work, shadow boxing, hitting the bag and the dummies and similar exercises, inasmuch as Manager Flynn has ruled against any sparring until next week.

STEVENS POINT MATMAN
Dempsey's extra poundage was visible Wednesday but he perspired freely and appeared well pleased after the day's work. A Wisconsin lumberjack, Leo Popple of Stevens Point, gave Jack a workout on the mat, the heavyweight wrestling a few rounds with the former titleholder.

Just when Dempsey and Flynn will admit the public to the training quarters has not been determined.

LEWELLEN SIGNS PACKER CONTRACT

Lanky Lou from Nebraska Will Play Fourth Season at Green Bay

Green Bay—Lanky Lou Lewellen, who was picked on the All-American professional football team in 1926, has signed his contract with the Green Bay Packers. This will be Lewellen's fourth season with the Badger state champions. He joined the Bays in the fall of 1924, fresh from Nebraska where he played varsity ball for three years and captained the team in his senior year.

Lewellen has developed into a great backfielder and his punting ability probably isn't equalled by any boot-smith in the National League. Lou foots 'em for fifty or sixty yards at a crack and the extra yardage has caused all the Packers' opponents plenty of grief.

With Lewellen in the fold, the Packers have a backfield, which on paper looks like a second-to-none combination. Nine "barriers" are under contract. Aside from Lew and Capt. Lambeau they are: Cully Linder, Rex Enright, Tom Hearden, Pid Purdy, Red Dunn, Eddie Kotol and Pete Jackson. There is enough class in this bunch to throw a score into the Bears, New York, Yellowjackets and other not-mothers.

Four ends, Maherty, O'Donnell, Dilwer and Tuttle are under contract, while the line men include, Cahoon, Woodin, Karp, Jones, Perry and Darling. The management hopes to be in a position to announce two more line men before the first of September arrives.

THREE CARD MENTORS TO TEACH AT Y CAMP
Madison—Three Wisconsin coaches will leave this week to instruct in the Y. M. C. A. athletic camp at Phantom Lake, Durston, Wis., Coach Jones and Coach Thistlethwaite will drill the boys in football and track work during the annual ten-day period.

WON'T RETURN

Madison.—(P)—John Cavosie, Ironwood, Mich., who gained a place on the sport pages last fall as a star member of the University of Wisconsin fresh football team, will not return to Wisconsin this September.

Cavosie, who was dropped from Wisconsin because of scholastic difficulties at the close of the first semester last year, has been working at Camp Douglas, and he had planned to return here this fall, and reenter school as a freshman, and be eligible to play in 1928.

Latest reports from intimate friends of the Ironwood star, however, are to the effect that Cavosie will not attend school this year.

Cavosie is one of the greatest triple threat stars that ever attended Wisconsin, and he was expected to make a name for himself on the gridiron that would rival that of "Pat" O'Dea, "Rollie" Williams, "Norsky" Larson, and other greats of Badger grid history.

Gets Reserve Strength

The Chicago Cubs recently purchased infielder Yoter from the American Association for reserve strength in the pennant fight.

New York—Sid Terris, N. Y., defeated Phil McGraw, Detroit (10).

FOUR LOCAL YOUTHS IN STATE SWIM MEET

Carl Baldwin, James Neller, Mark Catlin, Shorty Helms Entered

Four youthful swimmers of Appleton will leave early Saturday morning by automobile for Phantom Lake, where they will compete in the annual Wisconsin Y. M. C. A. swimming championships in the afternoon. A. P. Jensen, local physical director, may accompany the boys. The meet is held under the auspices of the state physical education committee, which is headed by Joseph Horner, Jr., of Green Bay.

The Appleton entries are Carl Baldwin, Mark Catlin, Jr., James Neller and M. "Shorty" Helms, all junior swimmers and all skilled in the water. Beside their regularly-entered events, the four will form the Appleton relay team for the 500-yard event.

Baldwin will enter the 50-yard back and 100-yard breast stroke events; Catlin the fancy diving and 100-yard free style; Neller, the fancy diving and 50 and 100-yard free styles.

American Swimming Association rules govern the tourney, which is open to any amateur athlete in Wisconsin. Association employed officers are not competing and questions of eligibility must be passed upon according to the Y. M. C. A. national rules.

First places in all events will in each case merit a silver medal in both senior and junior divisions, with the exception of the relay and mile swim. Ribbons will be given to second and third place winners, while no award will be given to the winners of the relay, except points for their team.

Events which contesting amateurs may enter include the 50 yard free, 100 yard breast, fancy diving, 200 yard relay, 100 yard free, and 100 back. One man may enter any three events besides the relay.

To Train in Woods
Pittsburg's grid squad plans a two weeks' camp early in September.

One of Few
Kentucky, scheduled to play Indiana, is one of the few southern teams to play a Big Ten team this year.

Bill Johnston Remains Net Star For 14 Years

Little Bill Johnston in many ways is the most interesting of the world's tennis stars. Over a period of 14 years he has been outstanding. During that time many a star has flashed over the tennis horizon, only to burn himself out after a few years of stiff competition. Yet Johnston remains one of the ranking players, and a mighty popular one.

To look at Johnston, one would never pick him as one of the greatest players in the history of the sport. He is slight of physique and looks anything but the athlete. However, he has the heart and the skill plus a keen mind. Were Johnston stronger physically, he would have been almost unbeatable.

Last year in conversation with Johnston at the Longwood courts just outside of Boston, I asked him how he happened to go in for tennis so strongly.

"It required a catastrophe to make a tennis player out of me," he replied. "My tennis dates back to the San Francisco fire of 20 years ago. You folks in the east no doubt recall that happening as the earthquake, but to us native sons it was the fire not the quake that caused all the trouble.

"The schools were closed and a vacation of six months loomed ahead. To kill time I began playing tennis in the parks. By the time the schools reopened in the fall I could beat any one my age in San Francisco.

"That was 20 years ago. In 1915 I realized my ambition of winning the national championship. Since then Bill Tilden has kept me from winning a lot more titles."

By many experts Johnston is considered the best all-round tennis player in the game. He is a great shot-maker, a wonder at volleying, brilliant with his ground strokes. There is no better forehand anywhere and he has the ideal disposition, for nothing ruffles him.

KIMBERLY, BAYS TO PLAY MONEY SERIES
Loop Leaders Still Think They Can Beat Green Sox, 4-time Victor

Kimberly—Green Bay and Kimberly are to fight it out again on a winner take all basis. An arrangement has been made whereby the Green Bay team will come to Kimberly park to battle the league leaders in the first game of a three-game series Saturday, Aug. 27. These games will have no bearing on league standing. However, by popular demand the series has been arranged and record attendances are sure to follow.

Green Bay is the only league team to defeat the Kimberly league leaders this season, and they have succeeded in spanking the Papermakers four consecutive times. These wins have been responsible for keeping the Bay squad in second position.

The non-league fray will start at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The last game two weeks ago against the Green Sox went 12 innings before Lannoye stole home with the winning run and incidentally the game. Real baseball was displayed and the series games should prove to be just as exciting with the players fighting for the big stake.

BADGER COACHES REPORT SEPT. 10

Thistlethwaite Calls Six Assistants to First Strategy Session

Madison — Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite Thursday issued a call to all members of the Wisconsin football coaching staff to assemble in Madison on Sept. 10. The new Badger grid chief has just returned to the city from his two weeks' coaching school at Bemidji, Minn., and is busily engaged mapping out his first fall campaign as a Cardinal coach.

The six assistants who have been summoned to sit in on the first session of the Wisconsin strategy board next month are Tom Lieb, line coach; Stub Allison, end coach; Guy Sunda and Irv Uteritz, backfield coaches; and Glenn Holmes and Rolfe Barnum, freshmen coaches. This group, headed by Thistlethwaite, with Lieb as his first lieutenant, will whip the 1927 Badger squad into shape.

LITTLE TO HELP
Director George Little has chosen to supervise intra-mural football, and will appoint several other department members to aid him in drilling the hundreds of men who will participate in the various leagues. Little will make an effort to teach some sound grid fundamentals to this group with the hope of developing material for the varsity.

Guy Lowman will again assume direction of the All-Americans which is composed of those candidates ineligible for conference competition, but carrying a higher rank than that of freshmen.

This season will mark the debut of Rolfe Barnum into athletic coaching. Barnum graduated last June. While attending the university he was one of the most versatile athletes ever competing for Wisconsin. He was one of two Badger athletes winning nine letters. Barnum played in the backfield on the Cardinal eleven and held down a guard position on "Doc" Maxwell's squad. He held down the position behind the bat on the baseball team for three years and was adjudged one of the most consistent hitters on the nine during his time.

Dayton, Ky.—Midget Guesy, Newport, Ky., knocked out Billy Jeakle, Detroit (6).

Modern people spend more for the joys of living than in any other age ever known. But they demand the utmost value for their money.

Present-day smokers find their sheerest enjoyment in Camels

THE people of this age spend millions for the good things of life. And they place Camel first among cigarettes.

Modern smokers make money, but when they spend it they insist on quality, and more people today buy Camels than ever bought any other cigarette.

Camel value has won the modern world. Money cannot buy choicer tobaccos, nor a more glorious blending. That's why increasing millions in the modern age single out this famous smoke as their favorite. You, too, will find it yours.

LEADING TEAMS TO FACE LOWER RIVALS IN VALLEY LEAGUE

Kimberly Invades Neenah, Kaws at Oshkosh, Pails at Green Bay Sunday

STANDINGS	W. L. Pct.
Kimberly	13 4 .765
Green Bay	11 6 .647
Oshkosh	7 7 .500
Menasha	8 9 .471
APPLETON	7 8 .467
Neenah	5 10 .333
Kaukauna	4 11 .267

SUNDAY'S GAMES
Kaukauna at Oshkosh
Kimberly at Neenah
Menasha at Green Bay

Though Appleton is resting Sunday as far as Valley league games are concerned, three battles will occupy the attention of Valley fans: the most important, of course, being at Neenah, where Kimberly will take the field to keep its margin at the top of the circuit. Kimberly is an easy favorite to beat the squad which is battling Kaukauna for the last berth, but should Nixon have one of his "on" days, there may be an upset. However, the Neenah moundman has shown little control since splitting his hurling paw. His finger has not healed well and it is said to be crooked giving him a poor grip for his favorite shoots. Even against Appleton in an 18.5 win, he walked many batters when they'd wait him out, which they often failed to do, and he hit one foe.

Kimberly also has a slight edge in bat strength especially since the return of Len Smith to the lineup, but one or two of the Neenah batters, also can slug the apple, especially Cy Shesleske. A Neenah win coupled with a Green Bay victory, will move the Bays up to a game from the top.

Oshkosh and Green Bay, playing at home, also are favorites against Kaukauna and Menasha, but not as much as Kimberly over Neenah. Noel is back with the Carvers, though Gabe Roth is the new manager of the squad, and in a pinch his slowball may be better against the Kaws than Gietz's speed, should the leading Sawdust city moundman get pounded from the hill. Gietz finally seems to have passed over the "promising" stage and ranks with the loop's best bats. He held Neenah's dangerous batters to four hits in the first game and eight the second last week, handling both tilts well.

The Kaws hurler will be backed by a wrecking crew which finally has found its eye as 27 hits and 24 runs in the two Neenah games show. Les Smith assumed the loop homerun lead with three in one game in addition to a double, and he had a .500 mark in the second game while being passed twice. In our humble opinion Les is far too good for this class of ball and any hurler that can limit him from at least two safeties a game and at least one home run if they pitch to him each time up, also should be given a trial in faster company.

At the Bay, LaCasse former regular moundman, who hurled all of last year, and practically every game this year until he left for the west, is back and in fine shape for Menasha. The Pails beat the Bays a few weeks ago and kept them from a place in the league from Kimberly and the way they have been clouting the pill of late gives them good chance for another upset. Powell looks good behind the pan and can be called on to twirl if the other men go wrong. Zanefski will not last long against the Bays but Lewandowski appears to have a fair game up his sleeve now and then. Powell, Lewandowski, and John and Julius Welschberger form a bunch of hitters hard to stop and all can clout homers. John also is a pretty third sacker.

There are but two possible shifts in the percentage table by the games, though the race will be tightened or loosened by the wins and losses. The changes may occur in third and fourth place and the cellar jobs. Menasha, by beating Green Bay while Kaukauna trounces Oshkosh, can oust the Sawdusters from third to fourth, taking the former position itself. Kaukauna, by a win, can tie Neenah for sixth place and come out of a lone hold on the cellar for the first time this year, providing Neenah loses to Kimberly. A Menasha loss will throw the idle Appleton squad back into fourth place and move the Pails back to fifth.

ALEXANDER SAYS CUBS FAR FROM IN

Great Alex Expects Cardinals to Give Leaders Hard Fight Yet

Philadelphia —(P)—The St. Louis Cardinals are not out of the National league pennant race—not if Grover Cleveland Alexander, star Cardinal hurler and hero of the last world series, knows his baseball.

While here with the world champions for a series with the lowly Phillies, Alexander the Great unbent himself concerning his team's chances to lead the Cubs or the Pirates to the flag.

"Don't count us out yet," said Alex. "The Cubs are out in front now, but we are right after them. That triple setback in Boston last week did them no good. You know it's funny thing about a ball club, an apparently minor loss forgotten by the fans the day after may be the turning point in the race with the club itself."

"Take the first game of the double-header that the Cubs tossed away to the Braves, that 6 to 5 defeat after the Cubs went into the ninth frame leading by three runs and with their ace, Root, on the hill. The Braves pounded out a win. And don't think that doesn't hurt a machine. Carlson lost a game in Brooklyn much the same way when he stayed in the box with a comfortable lead in the eighth, only to lose out. Such defeats for a club of the Cub's type mean disaster. When they find that other clubs can come from behind and beat them they will lose their cocksureness—and then look out for the tobehorn."

"We have no games to play with the Cubs, say of them on our own grounds and the Cubs have not won a game in St. Louis this year. I think it is only a matter of time before they will be sent south."

BALL PEEVED WHEN CHARLIE ROOT WINS

Cub Star Was on Roster of Browns Three Years and Then Was Sold

BY BILLY EVANS

Every time Charley Root of the Chicago Cubs scores a victory, as I write these lines he has 22 to his credit, I can see Phil Ball, owner of the Browns, gnashing his teeth and indulging in a few favorite words of profanity.

At present, Charley Root is the most efficient pitcher in the majors. He has a chance to win 30 ball games. And, just think of it, for a period of three years he was the property of one

Phil Ball, whose club never was worse off for pitchers.

George Sisler, when manager of the Browns, traded Root to Los Angeles with several other Browns for the battery of Lyons and Hoge, neither of whom made the grade in the majors. Maybe that is one of the reasons why George Sisler will not be one of the four players who are to be retained from the present St. Louis lineup, according to Phil Ball.

This is practically certain to be the last season for Ty Cobb in the American League. Had it not been for the unpleasant betting scandal of last winter, I doubt if Ty would have returned for the 1927 campaign. Playing this year was merely a form of vindication.

"As I feel now, this will be my last year," remarked Ty to me recently. "I found it difficult to get in shape this spring and just as hard to hold my condition. The legs won't stand for it."

"I have always wanted to enjoy a long vacation during the summer months and I think 1928 will mark my getting it. Since baseball is my forte, I may return, but for a year I want to learn how it feels to be away from the staid."

I look for Cobb to purchase a minor league club, probably in the south, his home. He may dabble in major ball for I know that he has twice made overtures for big league franchises.

George Moriarty has definitely proved that umpires are able to manage major league ball clubs competently. His debut in the big show must be classed as a decided success.

The few umpires who took a whirl at the managerial game were none too successful and when Owner Frank Navin turned the Detroit club over to Moriarty, the wisecracker agreed that one year would be about his limit.

Getting away to a bad start, due to a tough break in the weather as well as many injuries to his stars, things looked mighty blue for a time.

Moriarty frankly admitted managing was a tougher job than umpiring, explaining it by saying the umpire worried for only two hours of the game while the manager had 24 hours of it.

Ten games below the .500 mark at the first of June, Moriarty finally got his system properly installed and the Tigers have been stepping fast ever since.

If Detroit can finish second—it has more than a fighting chance—Moriarty deserves to be classed as the outstanding new pilot in the American League.

LIGHT FOR FANS

Harnessing Of Colorado River One Of The Big Jobs Faced By Congress

BY DWIGHT B. HEARD

To harness the mighty Colorado River, change its waste into use, conserve its vast resources of "white coal," protect the settlers in its lower reaches within Arizona and California from the ravages of its terrific floods, is one of the big jobs confronting the next Congress.

This task is of national size and with it go national obligations. This great stream flows through seven arid states, all of which have their unquestioned constitutional rights to "the use and disposal" of the waters of this interstate stream as it flows through their borders.

The unregulated flow of the Colorado River is now overappropriated. Storage of the unregulated flow of the river is the only method for future development. The demand for the use of this stored water in reclaiming lands from the desert, is greater in these Colorado Basin states than is the available water supply. With this condition has grown up a proper and steadily increasing insistence that these American waters, when stored for use under a comprehensive Colorado River development program in the canyon of the river as it flows through Arizona, shall be reserved for use by settlers on American soil and not allowed to be absorbed by landowners in Mexico.

HOOVER TREATY PLAN

Herbert Hoover and other national leaders feel it is far easier to settle the conflicting rights of the states to the use of the Colorado River by agreement of treaty rather than by long, uncertain and costly litigation.

The settlement of these rights attempted by the Colorado River Compact has been made especially difficult because of the insistence of Senator Hiram Johnson and a group of his supporters that the Swing-Johnson bill, sometimes known as the Boulder Canyon bill, be forced through Congress, despite the determined protest of Arizona, which furnishes nearly six per cent of the Colorado River's water supply, while California furnishes none.

This bill, framed solely in the interests of California, ruthlessly violates Arizona's fundamental state rights and deprives her of valuable natural resources essential to her development.

Let us for a moment consider the size of this intricate problem, analyze the Swing-Johnson bill, and review Arizona's position.

HUGE WATERSHED

A few figures as to size are startling. The watershed of the Colorado, 242,000 square miles, practically equals the combined area of France and Italy. The floods of this river, now annually wasted, when stored will gradually reclaim from the desert within all of the Colorado basin states over 6,000,000 acres.

One day's recorded flood of this giant stream will cover 440,000 acres one foot deep with water. At one carefully surveyed reservoir, the Black Canyon site, partly in Arizona and partly in Nevada, a dam 550 feet high will impound for storage 26,000,000 acre feet of water, over 15 times as much as that impounded by the famous Roosevelt Dam in Arizona, which has successfully reclaimed 240,000 acres surrounding Phoenix.

Careful engineering studies of the power possibilities of the Colorado show that at seven power sites in Arizona and one other site, partly in Arizona and partly in Nevada, about 4,000,000 horsepower can be developed or 50 per cent as much as all the hydroelectric power developed in the United States in 1926. This startling statement is easily verified by reference to recent publications of the United States Geological Survey.

USE MORE POWER

These reports also show that the use of power in the United States has increased 40 per cent in the last four years, and that during 1926, of the total horsepower produced in the United States, 35 per cent was hydroelectric, which was more than holding its own against steam power.

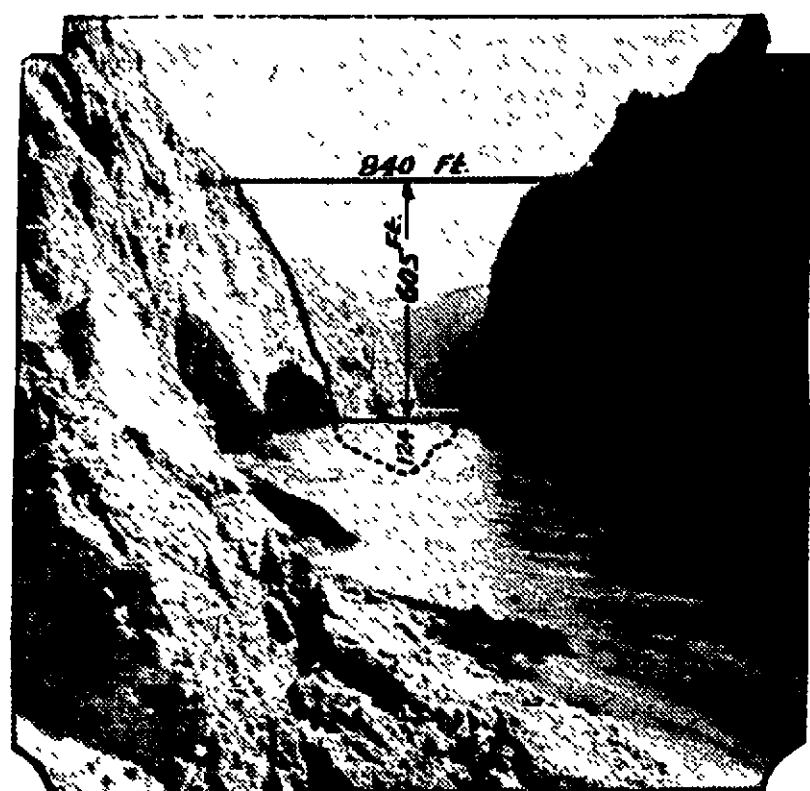

The Swing-Johnson bill, while advocated as a bill to relieve the danger of floods to the Imperial and Yuma Valleys, is in fact a bill providing for enormous power development at a specific site on the Colorado River Canyon, 25 miles from Los Angeles, where the 700,000 horse power to be developed at the unusually low cost of three-tenths of a cent per kilowatt hour will be transmitted and sold to the very great material advantage of Southern California.

WHAT BILL CALLS FOR

The bill provides that the federal government advance $125,000,000 divided—as per official report in the bill—as follows:

Dam	$11,500,000
Power Plant	31,500,000
All American Canal	31,000,000

SITE OF PROPOSED DAM

Interest during construction . . . 21,000,000
This money, with interest thereon, under the provisions of the bill, is to be paid back to the government from operating profits within 50 years. Under the official report of $10,800,000 annually, or about $6 per cent of the estimated annual gross revenue, is to be obtained from power sales.
In addition to power development, flood control, desiltation, water storage to the extent of at least 20,000,000 acre feet, control of the waters of the Colorado River is provided in the hands of the secretary of the interior: $31,000,000 provided to build the All-American Canal, supplying water from the Colorado for use of the Imperial and Coachella valleys in California, are all included in the bill.
Provision is further made that no rights to the use of water impounded can be initiated until a compact dividing the water between the upper and lower Colorado River Basin states has been approved by all these states, except Arizona, and she is later given the right to approve this compact. This bill provides not one dollar for

Enclosure of Written Material Changes Classification of Package

Warning has again been issued at the Appleton postoffice against mailing parcel post packages containing written material. Suitcases containing written matter such as old letters, reclamation work in Arizona, although she furnishes over 5 per cent of the Colorado River's water supply, while California furnishes none.

No provision is made in the bill for the payment of an annual revenue in lieu of taxation to those states which contribute their natural resources to power production, a principle which Arizona insists shall be included in a new Colorado River bill. The people of Arizona are practically a unit in opposition to the Swing-Johnson bill.

bills, receipts, memoranda books, etc., repeatedly are mailed, and this is strictly against the postal regulations, F. F. Wetzel, acting postmaster, stated.

Packages of raw wool sent to local mills for manufacture often contain slips giving instructions for its making.

"In many instances the mailers state that the suitcases were accepted by postal employees for mailing at the fourth class rates without inquiry as to whether they contained written matter, that they were unaware that the enclosure of written matter would change the classification, and that they were not so advised by the postal employees," a notice from the postal department stated.

"It is therefore suggested that when suitcases are offered for mailing, postal employees in every instance make inquiry as to whether they contain any handwritten or typewritten matter, and advise the mailers that enclosures of such matter will subject the entire parcel to postage at first class rate, opportunity being given, if desired, for the removal of any such written matter before the suitcase is accepted for mailing."

ANNOUNCE RESULT OF ELECTION ON SUNDAY

Results of the election of a delegate and alternate from the First Methodist church to the lay electoral conference of the Wisconsin conference of the church will be announced at the morning service Sunday, Aug. 28. A vote was taken last Sunday morning.

Delegates are chosen from each church in the conference and they in turn elect delegates to the electoral conference of the church held in Kansas City, Mo., in May 1928. Suggested changes in the government of the church will be discussed at the lay conference here, and may be brought before the conference in Kansas City.

PRIZE CATTLE ARE PARADED ON GROUND BEFORE SPEED TILT

Butcher the Great Winner in 2:24 Trot — Joe Grattan First in Free for All

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Seymour—Ten thousand people attended the Seymour fair Wednesday afternoon and were entertained as never before on the local grounds. Long before the last visitors arrived at the gates, the seats in the grandstand were sold. The overflow was directed across the race track and lined up at the fences on both sides to see the races and free acts and to enjoy the music of the 120th Field Artillery band.

When the races and other performances were at their height, a party of fifty business men of Green Bay and the American Legion band, under the leadership of R. F. Malle, secretary of the chamber of commerce, entered the fair grounds, and took a position at the west end of the grandstand where the band announced the arrival and assisted in the musical part of the afternoon program. Beside the two bands mentioned, two orchestras entertained at times in various locations in the grandstand and in front of it. The free acts and the races as well as the music were the best ever offered on the Seymour fair grounds.

CALF CLUBS BUSY

Before the races began, a procession of prize-winning cattle led by calf club boys with their calves passed the grandstand. The Sunnyside calf club showed four boys with the calves, the Osborn club three boys and calves, the Waukegan calf club, ten boys and calves. Next in the procession, came the prize winners of the Outagamie Brown Swiss Breeders' association, which had sixty-five animals at the fair, followed by the Guernseys and after them the Holsteins.

The race program consisted of a 2:24 trot, a free for all and a running race. In the 2:24 trot, eight horses started and three heats decided the race. The best time was 2:16 1/2, and Butcher the Great got first money. Lady Minor, second money and Josephine Guy, third money.

In the free for all race, five horses started. The race was won by three straight heats by Joe Grattan. Cigarette won second money and Sir Walsingham, third money. The best time was 2:14 1/2.

BROWN SWISS WINNERS

The best exhibition of Brown Swiss cattle ever seen in this part of the state was made at the fair this year by the Outagamie County Swiss Breeders' association. The prize winners and classes are as follows:

Bull three years old and over, Otto Rohm, first; Geo. McElroy, second and Emil Mueller, third; bull two years old and over, A. W. Litzkow, first; bull one year old, Emil Mueller, first; Otto Rohm, second; cow four years old and over, A. W. Litzkow, first; Emil Mueller, second; and George McElroy, third. Waukesha-Co Leading In Naming Farms In State

Madison—(AP)—Waukesha-co is leading the way in naming farms, the first step in a program to spread the name of Wisconsin products over the nation.

Agricultural forces of the county, according to Andrew W. Hopkins, agricultural journalist editor at the University of Wisconsin, are behind the plan.

There are approximately 2,500 farms in the county, Mr. Hopkins explained, and the business of naming the farms is progressing rapidly. Complying with provisions of the Wisconsin law, 120 farmers have already registered names with the register of deeds.

Through such naming, which is expected to spread over the state during ensuing months, it is hoped that the products of the farms will bear similar names and as a result, bring Wisconsin products to the attention of the nation.

"Many products of our farms go on the markets as 'orphan' names," Mr. Hopkins said, "Although Wisconsin pro-

Here And There Among The Farmers--

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Leo Bleck, route 1, New London, threshed 650 bushels of oats recently from 17 acres. He has 15 acres of very good corn but that and his pasture is drying up. To make up for the lack of pasture, Mr. Bleck is feeding his silage to his cows. He has finished painting his residence and will soon begin painting his out-buildings. He has 20 acres of red clover that are ready for the second cutting. At the first cutting, the field yielded two loads to the acre.

F. W. Stittman, route 1, New London, threshed 800 bushels of oats from 17 acres.

Herman Conrad, lately threshed 650 bushels of grain. His wheat and oats yielded 20 bushels to the acre. The dry weather and rust injured both of these crops. He has ten acres of the best corn in the town of Maple Creek, and three acres of cabbage that look good. The cabbage, however, is suffering from dry weather and it is infested with green worms. His high ground pasture is drying up and he is feeding his cows corn silage.

The new dwelling of H. C. Krehlow, town of Maple Creek, is rapidly nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy in about two weeks. The building has four rooms up stairs and four rooms on the lower floor, exclusive of bath and enclosed sun porch and garage. The building will be provided with running water, vapor heat, and electric lights.

Theodore Abraham, Medina, threshed 1,900 bushels of grain recently from 25 1/2 acres. About 3 1/2 acres of wheat yielded 30 bushels, and 22 1/2 acres of oats yielded 32 1/2 bushels to the acre. Oats of field yielded 100 bushels to the acre. The oats in another plot were lodged and covered with rust and did not yield so well, but he is well pleased with the average of 32 1/2 bushels to the acre. The seed oats originally came from Madison and were sown on corn and pea fields, plowed in the fall and top dressed with manure in the winter.

Apple trees in Dorco orchards are so loaded with apples this season that to produce apples two and one-half inches in diameter, pickers thinned out the fruit. The demand for apples two and one-half inches in diameter is much stronger than for those of smaller sizes and the price of the larger size is the better.

Lark Lovejoy, route 4, Weyauwega, said that a cattle buyer from the south part of the state recently remarked that he found much better fields of corn in Waukegan this summer than he had seen in the counties of his part of the state. Small grain is yielding very well in Waukegan and potatoes promise an average crop, with late potatoes better. A bumper crop of hay has been harvested.

Mrs. John Kasten, route 6, Appleton, who raised 1,200 White Leghorn chickens this summer, has disposed of her chickens. Her pullets, hatched on March 21, are now laying and her old hens have been laying since last August. Mrs. Kasten expects to winter her old hens and to use them for breeding purposes next spring. In using the eggs of old hens for hatching, Mrs. Kasten believes that she gets a sturdy class of chicks.

Fred Welsch, route 4, Black Creek, finished hauling in his grain recently. From 12 acres of oats he obtained 23 big loads on which he used fifty pounds of binder twine. In one of his alfalfa fields, the crop stood four feet tall before the first cutting and it is three feet tall now and ready for the second cutting.

Fred Dahms, town of Maple Creek, route 1, New London, recently threshed 408 bushels of oats, 15 bushels of barley and 30 bushels of wheat. His grain did not turn out as well as other years on account of a wet spring, late dry weather and rust. Mr. Dahms' corn is very good but it is beginning to dry up as a result of the lack of rain. His pasture is also showing the effect of dry weather.

P. J. Dempsey, Bear Creek, threshed 600 bushels of barley and oats last week. His crops are not as good as usual on account of the wet spring, rust and dry weather when the grain was ripening.

Edward Knapp, town of Deer Creek, recently threshed 907 bushels of oats and barley. The dry weather at harvest time and rust injured his grain and prevented the usual big yield.

Henry Roehl, route 2, is building a new chicken house. It will measure 20 by 30 feet.

CHAMPION FROM NORTHWEST

Two new world records have been set up by Carnation Walker Hazelwood, shown here, 3-year-old Holstein heifer on the large farm at Carnation, Wash. She produced 42.23 pounds of butter in seven days and 159.56 pounds in 30 days, putting her at the top of the world's 3-year-old dairy animals.

WILL GIVE COURSE FOR COW TESTERS

Shortage of Capable Men in Middle West, College of Agriculture Reports

Madison—(AP)—Wanted—Cow testers. The state college of agriculture, part of the University of Wisconsin, announces that there is now a shortage in the middle west in men who are expert in testing the health, fitness and productivity of dairy cattle.

Looking toward increased demands for men in this work the college has announced a special winter course starting Nov. 14 and ending March 16. Graduates of high school may complete this course in one year. Those with less training are advised to take two winters although special opportunity is given for a mature person who have had exceptional experience in dairymen to complete the course in one winter. The course requires men who are good penmen, who are proficient in arithmetic and have had dairy experience.

The course includes work on dairymen, feeding, judging, advertising, cooperation and marketing, and records, with a chance to choose elective subjects.

MORE PIGS IN STATE THIS YEAR, IS REPORT

Madison—(AP)—There will be approximately 4.9 per cent more pigs in Wisconsin this year than last, a June pig survey of the United States department of agriculture reports. The increase, according to a report issued by the federal state crop and livestock reporting service, is not due to the number of sows farrowing but rather to the large number of pigs saved per litter. A small increase in young pigs was reported as "general through the corn crop."

Unlike Wisconsin, a number of neighboring states showed marked increases in the number of brood sows. This, together with the increase in number of pigs saved per litter, brings up the pig population in general. The number of sows farrowing in Wisconsin this year is reported as being slightly lower than a year ago, but Illinois shows an increase of over 4 per cent, Michigan 4 per cent, Indiana nearly 7 per cent, and Ohio over 8 per cent.

The average farm milk price for Wisconsin has been steady during the first half of 1927 the report states. The June price averaged $1.96, which is 25 cents above last year and 14 cents above 1925. It is the highest June milk price since 1920.

INTERESTING BOOTHS ON DISPLAY AT FAIR

Outagamie-co Nurse Has Exhibit Showing Contrast Between Two Types of Homes

BY W. F. WINSEY

Seymour—The open house kept in a large, roomy tent on the fair grounds this week by Miss Marie Klein, Outagamie-co nurse, is one of the most popular places at the Seymour fair.

On a table in one corner of the tent is a model of the healthful residence and surroundings and opposite it is a model of an unhealthy house and yard. In another corner, in a glass-faced, upright case of large dimensions, is an array of milk bottles, in another line milk trains and in a third line milk wagons, all in an endless procession and illustrating the movement of milk from its source to the door step of the consumer. A weight-indicating scale occupying a central position is constantly used by Miss Klein's callers. On another side of the tent are couches and the walls are adorned with health placards, each one driving home a lesson on health.

Fifty business men of Green Bay accompanied by the American Legion Band of 20 pieces under the leadership of R. E. Malla, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, ended a tour through Pulaski, Bondel, Shawano and Clintonville Wednesday at Seymour as guests of the officials of the Seymour fair.

One of the most interesting booths at the Seymour fair is the one conducted by Miss Alice Otto, Appleton, of the state agency for adult blind. The booth is decorated very artistically with rugs of various colors, designs, materials and sizes, with every type of basket and other articles manufactured by the blind.

PECAN GROWER CALLS TREES MONEY MAKERS

San Angelo, Texas—(AP)—Owners of pecan timber have quite an edge on cattlemen in this district in the size of profits, says Frank J. Willman, pecan tree specialist.

Here are Willman's figures: A big pecan tree will produce 100 pounds of native pecans yearly. An acre will stand ten big trees and the nuts should be worth about $15, of which $10 should be profit. That means $100 an acre yearly, making the acre worth—at 10 per cent—$1,000. For a cow or steer 10 acres are required, which would under ordinary conditions, bring a net profit of $10.

Unlike Wisconsin, a number of neighboring states showed marked increases in the number of brood sows. This, together with the increase in number of pigs saved per litter, brings up the pig population in general. The number of sows farrowing in Wisconsin this year is reported as being slightly lower than a year ago, but Illinois shows an increase of over 4 per cent, Michigan 4 per cent, Indiana nearly 7 per cent, and Ohio over 8 per cent.

The average farm milk price for Wisconsin has been steady during the first half of 1927 the report states. The June price averaged $1.96, which is 25 cents above last year and 14 cents above 1925. It is the highest June milk price since 1920.

CORN BORER CALLED WORST PROBLEM NOW BEFORE U. S. FARMER

Badgers Warned to Keep Lookout — Pest Not Yet Across State Borders

Madison—(AP)—The control of the European corn borer, a small and insignificant looking insect, but with the power to do almost unlimited damage, is the most serious problem ever confronting the American farmer according to an article by H. F. Wilson, of the University of Wisconsin, appearing in a Wisconsin farm paper.

The corn borer immigrated to this country sometime between 1909 and 1914. The manner in which it came is not definitely known but it is believed that the insect infested broom corn which was imported from Europe by American broom manufacturers.

"The corn borer spreads with astonishing rapidity," writes Mr. Wilson, "and is able to be carried long distances by the wind. American entomologists, working along the southern shore of Lake Erie, are of the opinion that the infestation in these sections was started by moths carried across from Canada, drifting in the wind."

WARNS BADGER FARMERS

Although no cases of the corn borer have been found to exist in Wisconsin, the writer warns farmers to be ready to combat the insect which will, in time, arrive and invest their crops.

"No farmer should permit himself the luxury of feeling that the corn borer cannot be a serious pest in Wisconsin," says Mr. Wilson. "No one can tell how serious the invasion will be in Wisconsin, nor can we tell how extensive the damage may be."

"Experts from the college of agriculture have visited corn borer territory and are making a study of its habits and possible methods of control. The government authorities are conducting experimental tests with sprays and poisons and several insect parasites have been introduced from Europe and these are being reared on a large scale for the purpose of turning them loose in the corn fields. "With a population of 50,000 borers to one acre," concludes Mr. Wilson, "we can hardly expect to secure an entirely satisfactory elimination in one season."

profits, says Frank J. Willman, pecan tree specialist.

Here are Willman's figures: A big pecan tree will produce 100 pounds of native pecans yearly. An acre will stand ten big trees and the nuts should be worth about $15, of which $10 should be profit. That means $100 an acre yearly, making the acre worth—at 10 per cent—$1,000. For a cow or steer 10 acres are required, which would under ordinary conditions, bring a net profit of $10.

KEEP MILK CLEAN, IS WARNING TO DAIRYMEN

Madison—(AP)—Dairymen in Wisconsin are being warned by C. J. Kremer, state dairy and food commissioner, that they have not been "discriminating enough regarding the quality of milk in this greatest of all dairy states."

The commissioner attributed the "lack in quality" to the intense competition between the milk and cream distributors. In the interest of the dairy industry of the state, therefore, he has served notice on "all and sundry" that, "we must have good milk."

"Clean milk is the foundation stone of the welfare of the industry," Commissioner Kremer said, "both essential and indispensable if that work is to prosper. Dirty milk is repulsive, it brings foreign flavors into the milk which adversely affects its palatibility and that of products made from it. It is often infested with undesirable bacteria which when used in cheese making cause abnormal fermentation."

BOWERMAN WON'T REBUILD BARN RAZED BY FLAMES

E. R. Bowerman, proprietor of the Hopland Dairy Farm town of Maine, whose barn filled to capacity with hay burned to the ground Aug. 12, has not decided to rebuild this fall and may sell his cattle at public auction before winter sets in. Before the fire, Mr. Bowerman had one of the best planned dairy barns in Outagamie-co.

The stables were brilliantly lighted with sun light by day and electric lights at night. The ventilating system discharged the fresh air from the outside at the mangers of the cows and forced the stale fumes through a large number of conductors, scientifically located, to the outside. The stables were equipped with perfect drainage, steel pens and stanchions, concrete floors, drinking cups, easy access to feeds and a milk room provided with power and equipped with modern machinery for turning out sanitary dairy products. It would cost Mr. Bowerman in the neighborhood of $20,000 to rebuild his barn.

WANTS TO CUT TREES TO GIVE FLOOD ROOM

Washington—(AP)—It is suggested in a letter to the United States Forestry service that all trees from Cairo, Ill., to Baton Rouge, La., be cut from between the Mississippi levees to "make room" for future floods.

The writer complains that 85 per cent of the land is taken up by "plant cottonwood forests and other kinds of tree growth of all sizes."

The Forestry service says the estimate is too high.

"Even if it were not," foresters explain, "tree growth on 85 per cent of the land surface in reality occupies only about one-ninth of one per cent of the cubical area, and its effect toward raising the flood level or retarding the movement of the water is wholly insignificant."

The United States has 133 physicalians to every 100,000 persons according to a recent survey. In England there are 92, in Germany 51 and in France 35 to each 100,000 of population.

Sweet music in a New Reproducing Instrument and at a New Low price

SWEET IS THE MUSIC from the Brunswick Panatrope, a perfect reproduction of the artist's performance, with a delicacy of tone and variation of volume to please the ear of the trained musician or those merely seeking entertainment. This is due to the entirely new principles of reproducing sound embodied in the instrument. And the instrument itself is a perfect example of the cabinet maker's art, fashioned of the finest woods by American craftsmen who take pride in their work.

IRVING ZUECKLE

JACK LOCKWILL IN THE WOODS

The wild bear was no match for the tame one. After a short, savage battle, it turned and ran, followed by Garabaldi. Jack ran after them, trying to stop the Italian's bear by calling. Ahead of the animals, in an old woods-road, a child appeared—a tiny tot. Screaming, the child fled with the wild bear pursuing. Garabaldi overtook the other bear before it caught the child.

While the bears fought again Jack raced forward and caught the screaming child up. Once more the wild bear fled. Whining, Garabaldi looked at Jack.

There was a shot, not far away. "I've got that old 'bar!' cried a man. His cry was answered by the shouts of men, coming from many directions.

PARTY POLITICS BEHIND RUMORS ON CANDIDATES

Southern Democrats Opposed to Smith; Urge New Slate for Party Harmony

RODNEY DUTCHER.
Washington—These recurrent rumors that Governor Al Smith will not seek the Democratic presidential nomination probably are inspired by hope. The truth seems to be that with William G. McAdoo pushed pretty well out of the picture, many Democrats—especially in the south—feel that their brethren who have supported Smith should also eliminate the governor in the interest of party harmony.

What happened was that the southern Democrats, realizing that no good would come out of a repetition of the Madison Square Garden mess of 1924, decided that the party must start with a clean slate, and that the chances of a successful campaign would not be ruined by bitter warfare over prohibition or religion.

They practically disowned McAdoo as the candidate of the "dry, Protestant south," no doubt much to McAdoo's disgust, but it does not appear that they obtained any promise from the Smith folks to do as much on their side of the fence.

THE TROUBLE. It was that the greater part of the McAdoo strength was enlisted in behalf of a cause, while the bulk of the Smith strength was attracted more by a personality. Thus, southern and western Democrats could discard McAdoo and choose another standard-bearer with few regrets, but the northern Democrats might be expected to fight to the last ditch for Smith.

The general result of the change in the Democratic lineup is that while a majority of the party may prefer someone other than Smith, the governor can command a much larger bloc of delegates at the next convention than any other candidate.

It will be much more difficult for the bone dry and anti-Smith people to organize behind any one candidate than they had all decided to stick with McAdoo. Undoubtedly there will be many aspirants for the McAdoo mantle, ranging all the way from Senator Carter Glass to Senator J. Thomas Hefflin.

TWO-THIRDS RULE BLOCKS

In a half-dozen representative southern states the plan now is to elect uninstructed delegates. Several delegations may vote for favorite sons on the first two or three ballots, but they will all be set to hop onto the third band wagon that inspires their enthusiasm. The Smith leaders see in this situation a chance to pick up a healthy assortment of delegates from southern states, but this factor seems likely to be negligible. Such delegates will be uninstructed, but precautions are being taken to see that they are also disloyal.

If it were not for the two-thirds rule, Smith might well hope to crash over to victory in the early balloting. But the two-thirds rule will surely be maintained and it seems likely that it will throttle Smith's ambitions.

Despite the tendency within the party to instill a spirit of peace and harmony into the convention, the terrible battle of New York is likely to be fought all over again unless there is some change in the situation such as a more benevolent attitude toward Smith or a more self-sacrificing attitude on Smith's part. Smith, presumably, sees no reason why he should be the sacrificial goat.

WHY SMITH IS OPPOSED.
New declarations by Smith such as those of prominent South Dakota Democrats, painful as they doubtless are to those Republicans who fear Smith more than anyone else, signify reinforcement of the Smith bulwarks next year, but they do not materially increase his chances of nomination.

Most southern and western Democratic leaders will fight for Smith's election if he is nominated and any Republican hopes of splitting the solid south in such an event are very optimistic indeed. But certain doubtful states will almost surely be lost and Democratic politicians along the fringe assured of control under normal circumstances, are convinced that Smith's nomination would wreck this control in the election. Thus, while asserting that Smith can win if nominated, they will try hard to prevent his nomination, asserting that there are other men who can win without upsetting party control in a half-dozen doubtful states.

STRIKING MINERS VOTED AID BY LABOR COUNCIL

Members of the Appleton Trades and Labor council voted $50 to aid wives and children of mine strikers locked out in the Illinois coal region during the protracted struggle between organized labor and the mine operators at the semi-monthly meeting at Trades and Labor Hall Wednesday evening. Joseph Cubby, a representative of the miners in the strike districts, told of conditions among the workmen in the present and previous strikes.

660 ACRE FARM IS SOLD
AT AUCTION FOR $1,050

The Northern farms, in the town of Bovina, was sold at public auction by Sheriff Otto Zuehlke late Wednesday afternoon to F. Hopkins, Madison, for $1,050. In addition the purchaser is liable for all back taxes, special assessments and liens against the farm. It is understood that back taxes on the farm exceed $25,000. The farm consists of 660 acres, 340 of which are in the southeast portion of section 15 and 320 acres in the north portion of section 22.

The farm was sold to settle a judgment received against it. W. P. Wagner is named as the former owner.

NEW EXIT READY FOR USE BY FIRE TRUCK

The new doors on the south side of the Appleton fire department, building providing an exit on the W. Washington-st. side, were completed Wednesday. Painters made the finishing touches by painting them a gray color to conform with the other woodwork of the station. The doors provide an exit for the long hook and ladder truck, which formerly used the Oneida-st. entrance.

Some trouble was experienced before the new doors were installed, according to G. P. McGillan, fire chief, because the hook and ladder truck was too long to make the turn in either direction on Oneida-st. when there were automobiles parked on the other side of the road or in winter when there was snow piled along the curb. The truck often got jammed because it was necessary to run into the street, then back up so that the turn could be made.

This trouble is eliminated now as the new doors provide an exit where it is possible for the big truck to swing in either direction without trouble. The work was done by George Ashman contractor.

INVESTIGATE ALLEGED DISTURBING OF PEACE

PEDESTRIAN INJURED IN MIDNIGHT ACCIDENT

Alvin Selig, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis R. Selig, 825 N. Harrison-st., was slightly injured when he was believed to have been hit by a car driven by John Hecke, Jr., 765 N. Richardson-st., at 12:30 Thursday morning on E. Wisconsin-ave. Hecke reported at the police station that while driving west on Wisconsin-ave he saw the man walking on the pavement ahead of him. He said the man suddenly disappeared and when he stopped to investigate he found him in the ditch.

Hecke brought Selig to the police station and reported the accident. It is not known whether the Hecke machine struck Selig or whether Selig walked into the side of the machine.

Selig was removed to his home in the police car by Captain V. J. Vaughn and Officer Carl Radtke. He was bruised about the back, left hip and leg.

return flight. They hoped to see them in 13 days they said. Schlee and Brock hope to circle the globe in 15 days, thereby beating the record of 23 days established last year by Linton Wells and Edward S. Evans, who traveled by airplane, train and steamer.

THREE PLANES READY
Three planes Thursday awaited only favorable weather reports to hop off on trans-Atlantic flights, but the weather bureau announced storms of great intensity off the American coast which should prove a menace to fliers today and perhaps longer.

Although almost ideal weather conditions were forecast from midcoast eastward for Thursday, James Kimball of the weather bureau, said that American fliers couldn't get out to take advantage of it because of a storm of gale force was near midcoast and moving rapidly northeastward.

planned to lighten the plane by reducing its gasoline supply.

Captain Frank T. Courtney hopes to take off Friday from Southampton, England, for the Azores on the first leg of his flight to America in his flying boat, the Whale, which failed to rise after repeated attempts when he tried to take off Wednesday. He and James Hill, pilot and navigator, notwithstanding feeling regarding Sacco and Vanzetti.

Captain Leslie Hamilton expects to leave Friday from Bristol, England, with Colonel F. S. Mincher, for America. After a trial flight Wednesday his machine was declared in perfect condition.

STOCK PRICES RALLY AFTER SHORT BREAK

Bullish Demonstration Breaks Up Selling Flurry on Wall Street

New York (AP)—Prices rallied fractionally higher at the opening of Thursday's stock market. General Motors old and new stocks quickly sold up to new high prices at 23 3/4 and 25 1/2, respectively.

U. S. Steel was heavy. Foreign exchanges opened soft with Spanish securities down 2 points and around 1.63 1/2 cents. Demand sterling ruled close at 1.85 1/2 and French francs below 2.91 cents.

A selling flurry, which drove General Motors down 2 points from its high level and also weakened Building, Dupont, Bethlehem Steel, General Electric, Case Threshing Machine, Woolworth, International Harvester and Paramount Pictures, subsided to a large extent when a furious bullish demonstration commenced in the lunch recess. General Motors snapped back to 24 1/2, a new peak. The rate for standing call loans was now 1 1/2 per cent.

The closing was irregular. Total sales approximated 2,300,000 shares.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN TO WAGE FIGHT ON COUNTY ILLITERATES

Survey Reveals Many Cases of Adult Illiteracy in Outagamie County

Effort to reduce illiteracy in Outagamie county will be made by the Appleton chapter of the American Association of University Women after the fall season's work begins. It has been announced. A survey of illiteracy in the county was made by the association last spring with the assistance of J. G. Pfeil, trustee officer. Less than ten of the cases were found to be 60 years of age, and none were below 30 years. The list issued by the federal census bureau was used as a basis for the investigation.

Several cases reported by the bureau could read or write in a foreign language although not in English. Others had died or moved away from the county. The survey showed. A corrected list of illiteracy in the vicinity will be sent to the bureau this fall. Miss Carrie E. Morgan, a member of the local committee on the work, said.

The Appleton vocational school is ready to aid the association in its work, it was said.

The state association started a campaign last year to wipe out illiteracy in the state. Mrs. Edith E. Hoyt of Madison, is chairman of the state wide committee representing the 20 branches of the association.

The campaign was undertaken upon realization of the amazing amount of adult illiteracy in Wisconsin, revealed during the World war draft and in the United States census report. The association felt that the work of lessening this condition and teaching Wisconsin people to read and write the English language was an appropriate task for the Association of University Women which was organized to improve educational standards and to develop a higher sense of civic responsibility.

6 APPLETON MEN WILL BE IN LEGION BAND AT PARIS

Six Appleton musicians already have been chosen as part of the 35-piece composite Wisconsin American legion band which will go to Paris in fall for the 1927 national legion convention, according to Edward F. Mumm, Appleton, conductor of the band. Mr. Mumm expects that a few more local men will be picked among the 35 musicians. Several thousand dollars still remain to be raised to send the band to Paris.

The local musicians who have been asked to make the trip are Stephen Rosebush, William Tabor, Orville Thompson, Carl Schmeidler and Wilbur and Sterling Schmeidler. Practically every one is an experienced soloist.

AUTOISTS NEGLECT FINE PARKING SPACE ON SCHOOL GROUNDS

There is one parking space in Appleton which has been in existence for several months and which probably has not been used more than once or twice this summer. With the opening of school in a few weeks the place will pass out of existence and probably will not be used until next summer. This place is the Lincoln school grounds between Appleton and Onondaga. For some people had been in the habit of parking their cars on the school grounds and then the practice was stopped. However, with the close of school barriers were placed near the wire fences and spaces marked off for stalls. But for some reason or other drivers have never used the place.

GATHER APPLETON GOODS FOR STATE FAIR EXHIBIT

All of the Appleton products, which will be exhibited in the local section at the Wisconsin state fair Milwaukee next week, were collected Wednesday evening from the 18 concerns which have contracted for booths. The products will be sent to Milwaukee Thursday and on Friday several local decorators and window trimmers will go to the city to prepare the booths. C. A. Gorrow of the A. Galpin and Sons Hardware Co. will be in charge of the decorating work. Several of the concerns will have representatives in charge of their booths during fair.

WISCONSIN FIGHTING FOR TOURIST TRADE

Land O'Lakes Association
May Establish Another
Travel Bureau

Antigo (AP)—Possibility of establishing a travel bureau of the Wisconsin Land O'Lakes association in St. Louis, Indianapolis, the Twin Cities or some other city will be discussed at the annual meeting here in October. One bureau of the association is now operating in Chicago.

B. O. Barstow, secretary of the association, a non-profit organization seeking to bring into Wisconsin more visitors, has announced the meeting.

Establishment by the Land O'Lakes association of an information bureau in Chicago on May 2 marked one of the steps in Wisconsin's fight to hold her own in the fight for tourists and resort trade, Mr. Barstow said. The Chicago office gives highway routings to motorists entering the Badger state, informs them as to accommodations at each resort, hotel and camp site; directs inquirers to lakes and streams where they will be reasonably certain of making good catches of fish, and, if desired, makes reservations at resorts and hotels for visitors.

Officers of the association are confident that establishment of a similar office in one of the other large cities of the midwest which furnish a big percentage of Wisconsin summer visitors would be worthwhile.

Selection of a city for the location of the new office is expected to result

In some discussion. St. Paul or Minneapolis, while favored by some communities, will encounter the opposition of others, who feel that they would get far better results from St. Louis.

The Missouri metropolis supplies a large number of Wisconsin visitors each year, as does Indianapolis. Accordingly, communities drawing heavily from each of the cities are expected to enter into active debate over the ultimate selection.

Another matter is expected to come before the meeting is that of presenting a request to the state legislature for funds with which to advertise not only Wisconsin's recreational offerings but its advantages as an industrial and agricultural state. Land O'Lakes association officers and directors are agreed that state help is necessary if Wisconsin is to survive in the fight for recreational trade being waged by Minnesota and Michigan.
